

Call for Papers

Oslo Macro Conference 2019: Macroeconomics with Heterogeneity

23–24 August 2019 in Oslo

This two-day conference promotes recent advances in macroeconomics with heterogeneity. Particular attention will be devoted to production, firms, and taxation. Topics include, but are not limited to:

- The role of firm heterogeneity for monetary and fiscal policy
- Trends and business cycle variation in market power and markups
- Investment dynamics
- Taxation
- Firm and household heterogeneity

This event is organized by BI Norwegian Business School, Norges Bank, Oslo Metropolitan University, the University of Oslo, and Statistics Norway. Our objective is to promote macroeconomic research and connect it to economic policy.

Confirmed speakers

Esteban Rossi-Hansberg (Princeton University), Stefania Stantcheva (Harvard University), and Claus Thustrup Kreiner (University of Copenhagen).

Paper Submission

A pdf version of the paper should be e-mailed to the program committee by May 1 at omc2019@oslomacro.no. Notification of acceptance will be given by May 15.

Organization

The conference program and other information about the conference will be posted on the designated conference website www.oslomacro.no.

The organizing and program committee is Gisle Natvik (BI Norwegian Business School), Kjetil Storesletten (University of Oslo), Fredrik Wulfsberg (Oslo Metropolitan University), Andreas Fagereng (Statistics Norway), and Knut Are Aastveit (Norges Bank).

The logo for Oslo Metropolitan University, featuring the word "OSLOMET" in a bold, black, sans-serif font, slanted upwards from left to right.