

SP&O announces facility fabrication expansion

WAYNE – Sunshine Prosthetics & Orthotics, of Wayne has expanded office facilities to include a new in-house fabrication shop. The additional 355 square feet will allow Sunshine P&O technicians to adjust and alter prosthetic and orthotic devices while the patient is in the office. Previously, these devices were sent out for the work to be done, requiring additional wait time and visits for the patient.

Brooke Artesi, owner and certified prosthetics/orthotist at Sunshine Prosthetics and Orthotics says, “Our team is so excited to be able to make the experience of having customized prosthetic and orthotic devices a more comfortable one for our patients. This new space will save the patient much time and allow us to customize the fit of these devices, both prosthetics and orthotics included.”

With the new added space, Sunshine P&O has been able to have an intern and shadow students from local schools. Nicholas Videtti, an intern at Sunshine P&O, has expanded his learning at the new facilities.

He said, “Not only did I learn how to mold, vacuum and modify sockets, but I also learned more about anatomy and physiology. This experience made me more comfortable with patients.”
