

Policy: Lafarge Canada Inc., a member of LafargeHolcim, and its employees, are committed to the production of building materials, and their use in construction, in compliance with legal requirements. We adhere to sustainable development principles, including pollution prevention, by continuously improving our environmental performance and seeking to make a positive contribution to nature and society.

Guiding Principles:

All our operations shall comply with environmental laws, regulations, the Environment policy, directives, and standards, applicable to our products and operations, and will strive to raise industry standards.

We use an effective in-house environmental management system to manage overall environmental responsibilities and performance. We promote our commitment through training and integration into business processes.

Through our sustainable procurement policy, we assess the environmental policies and practices of our critical suppliers and sub-contractors, and expect them to respect and comply with our environmental policies and procedures.

We measure the environmental attributes of our business, continuously improve processes, tools and capabilities and promote best practices in the industry. We encourage the life cycle impacts assessment of our products and solutions.

With a circular economy mindset, we optimize the use of resources through reusing, recovering and/or recycling waste materials in our own production processes, minimizing the generation of waste, and disposing of waste using safe and responsible methods. We aim to reduce the greenhouse gas intensity of our products and our solutions in the built environment.

We are open, honest, and accountable to our stakeholders; we disclose publicly non-proprietary information on our operations and products, cooperate pro-actively with legislators and regulators, and engage with local communities.

Brad Kohl
President & CEO
Lafarge Western Canada

Cory Cannon
Vice President
Cement Sales & Logistics
Lafarge Western Canada

Gian Raffainer
Head of Cement Industrial Performance
Lafarge North America