

Excerpt from Christ Our Pascha

Unity of the Old and New Testaments

In reading and interpreting Holy Scripture, the Church always takes into account two important dimensions: the divine and human. Neglect of the human dimension in Holy Scripture leads to literalism, where human forms of transmitting the word God are given a divine character. On the other hand, rejection of the divine dimension reduces Holy Scripture to mere historical - literary work. (#42)