Luke 11:28

What is the Holy Bible?

The Holy Bible is a collection of books written over multiple centuries by those inspired by God to do so. It is the primary witness to our faith. It was written by the prophets and apostles in human language, inspired by the Holy Spirit, and collected and edited by the Church. Above all, the Bible is a faith document.

Holy Scripture is divided into two main parts: the books of the Old Testament, before the Incarnation of Jesus Christ, and the books of the New Testament, after the Incarnation. The New Testament consists four Gospels, which detail Christ's earthly life (Mathew, Mark, Luke, John), Acts of the Apostles, the Epistles, and the Book of Revelation

Catholic versions of the Bible

- ◆ New American Bible, Revised Edition (NABRE)
- ◆ New Revised Standard Version, Catholic Edition, National Council of Churches

Use of the Holy Scripture in the Liturgical life of the Church

The Bible is central in the life of the Church and gives both form and content to the Church's liturgical and sacramental worship, just as to its theology and spiritual life.

In the worship and calendar of feasts, the Church uses passages from the Old and New Testaments as readings. The readings for Vespers, which interpret the feasts of the Lord and the saints, come from the Old Testament, and the readings for the Divine Liturgy come from the New Testament.

The Four Gospels are the center of the Bible, just as Christ is the center of the Church. For this reason the Four Gospels are always enthroned on the altar the Church.

Holy Bible is also used for prayer/meditation by individuals or in groups. Some people read it from the beginning some start at different books, some use the method of lectio divina.

What is lectio divina?

Lectio divina (Latin for "divine reading") is a method of prayer particularly suited to meeting the spiritual need of modern busy Christians. It is a way for us to receive words and images that do speak of God and bring us His life, light and love, to increase the knowledge of God's Word. It does not treat Scripture as texts to be studied, but as the Living Word.

Attitudes for lectio divina

In order to derive the greatest fruit from lectio divina, it is important to cultivate the right attitudes.

First, only in a silence that is both exterior and interior are we able to hear what God is saying to us. By withdrawing from the external noises of daily life (radio, TV, conversation, etc.) and by seeking to listen deeply to the voice of God in the depths of our hearts, we open ourselves to His grace and transforming love. Cultivating this type of silence becomes the daily challenge of a faithful disciple in the midst of a noisy world.

Secondly, we should recall that Mary, the Mother of God, is the perfect example of being a disciple of Christ, her Son. At the Annunciation (Lk 26f), Mary reveals a posture of deeply humble active receptivity, a radical openness to all that God willed to say to her and to accomplish in her life. Mary trusted that all things were possible with God and surrendered totally to His Word so that it would be fulfilled in her. Therefore, we should strive to actively receive as Mary did, relying on her intercession to obtain this grace.

Lastly, because God is trustworthy, we should trust Him without hesitation at every moment as did Mary.

Method of lectio divina

There are five basic movements of the prayer:

lectio, meditatio, oratio, contemplation and actio. They follow five fundamental steps: reading (lectio) to remember the words, pondering (meditatio) to understand, responding (oratio) to choose what God wills, resting (contemplatio) to be in the relationship of love and action (actio). These five should be preceded by an introductory prayer and ended with a brief prayer as well.
