

Acknowledgements

I would like to acknowledge my Principal Supervisor, Associate Professor Rola Ajjawi and my Associate Supervisor, Dr. Jessica Holloway. Thank you both for your honest feedback, support and encouragement. I am so grateful for all the time you invested in me and for your whole-hearted mentorship.

Thank you to my entire family, but particularly my mom, Janice, and dad, David, for your unconditional love and for instilling in me a love of learning. I'm immensely grateful for my partner Steve, aunt Alita and sister Theresa -- your encouragement to pursue this path has led to the beginning of a truly fulfilling career. I must also acknowledge my little rascal dog, Kylito, who often reminded me of the importance of play throughout this journey.

To my #100DaysOfWriting colleagues, I cannot thank you enough for your moral support and presence during co-writing sessions! Thank you to Axelle Martingale, Dr. Dinah Hippolyte-Blake, Lia Ah Ken, Michelle Linke and a host of friends who cheered me on, provided comic relief and celebrated my milestones.

To my Deakin colleagues, especially Leah Van Keulen, I am grateful to have learnt with and from you. I would also like to thank Professor Phillip Dawson for taking the time out to share valuable insights and for the encouragement to pursue a research pathway.

A heartfelt thank you goes to my research participants who, for ethical reasons, I am unable to name. Without your participation, this research would not have been possible.

To my past and current students – you were the inspiration to pursue this research topic. It was and is an honour to be part of your academic journey.

I would like to acknowledge the Wurundjeri People of the Kulin Nation as the traditional owners of the lands which I reside. Whilst I have engaged in contemporary learning and knowledge production, I pay my respect to elders past and present as well as the knowledge embedded forever within Indigenous ways of knowing and Aboriginal Custodianship of Country.

For anyone else I have not named here, your support has been deeply appreciated. So much love to you all.

Dedication

This thesis is dedicated to the loving memories of my nana, Juanita Lorraine Tucker and my aunt, Lynette Booker Sadrud-Din.
