Provider: SAFTI FIRST™ Fire Rated Glazing Solutions

Program Number: SAFTI4

Program Title: Code Considerations in Fire Rated Glass

Length: 1 hour

Credits: 1 LU hour

HSW: Yes

Learning Objectives: With the advent of new and better performing fire rated glazing products in the market today, there is much confusion on which products are appropriate for certain applications based on current code requirements. This program aims to:

- (1) Clarify the difference between fire protective vs. fire resistive glazing products as it relates to protecting people and property;
- (2) Review updated IBC and fire and safety requirements when designing for life safety;
- (3) Identify the correct, code-approved glazing products based on the application;
- (4) Provide you with the latest fire rated glazing product information.

Target Audience: Architects, specifiers, facility managers, building code officials and other members of the building community. This information is especially useful to professionals involved in designing Healthcare, Education, Hospitality,

Government, and Commercial facilities which often use fire rated glass.

Method of Delivery: The facilitator will use a PowerPoint slide presentation and distribute program handouts. Participants are encouraged to ask questions during the presentation or they may hold their questions until end of the program. Food will be provided for lunchtime presentations.

Facilitator Qualifications: All SAFTI FIRST Representatives have been trained in CES guidelines and presentation skills. In addition, they possess years of experience in the architectural building industry that lend tremendous depth to the information being presented.

A/V Needed: Electrical power, projector (in some cases) and a screen for the PowerPoint slide presentation. The facilitator will supply his own laptop for the presentation.

Costs: There is no cost to bring this program into your firm or chapter meeting.
