As one of the nation's acclaimed doctors, board-certified in Emergency Medicine, Dr. Jerisa Berry a.k.a "Dr. Jerisa ER" is also a nationally recognized speaker, media consultant and author. She is on staff at several emergency facilities throughout South Florida and is co-owner of a medical clinic, Vital Care Medical Center, Inc. with her husband. Dr. Jerisa is the founder of SecureYourFertility.com, where she helps single ladies and career-minded women take control of their fertility.

Through her own life experiences, Dr. Jerisa has become a subject matter expert in ovarian preservation, assisted fertilization and surrogacy. Her goal is to help women decrease the pressures and stressors associated with the process of securing their fertility. She believes both experience and medicine are the best teachers for women seeking to optimize and work through various fertility options.

When she is not saving lives in the ER, she shares her expertise in real-world health strategies as a sought-after media expert regarding acute, emergent and chronic health conditions. Her mission is simple: Make ER visits less stressful and more productive by increasing public awareness. As a relatable woman and ER doctor, women feel secure with her guidance to understand an optimal time to start a family and lessen the confusion of the fertility processes.

Dr. Jerisa graduated from Howard University and earned her medical degree from New York College of Osteopathic Medicine. She also completed her internship and dual-residency, for both Emergency Medicine and Family Medicine, at Northwestern University in Chicago, Illinois.
