

Can you act out a scene to show a Victorian doctor treating a large cut on someone's leg? How would he have treated the wound? What would have happened to the patient?

Now act out the same scene but with a modern doctor instead. How will this scene be different?

Can you act out a scene to show a Victorian doctor preparing to give a patient an operation? What would they do to get ready? What would they do to get the patient ready?

Now act out the same scene but with a modern doctor instead. How will this scene be different?

Can you act out a scene to show a Victorian doctor treating someone with an infected wound. What will the doctor decide to do about it? How will he treat the infection?

Now act out the same scene but with a modern doctor instead. How will this scene be different?