Chicago Financial Institutions Conference (CFIC) 2020
April 16-17, 2020

Call For Papers

Submission Deadline: November 1, 2019

The fifth annual Chicago Financial Institutions Conference (CFIC) will be held on April 16-17, 2020. The CFIC is a conference dedicated to research in the area of financial institutions. The conference provides a welcoming environment for scholars to share working papers with the community of people who are active in financial institutions research. The CFIC has grown to 150 attendees, which makes it a unique opportunity for feedback and collaboration. The John L. Keeley Jr. Center for Financial Services and the Department of Finance at DePaul University warmly invite you to join us at CFIC 2020 this spring. More information is available on the conference website at go.depaul.edu/CFIC.

The submission deadline for papers is November 1, 2019. We welcome submissions of high-quality research on all topics related to financial institutions. The range of topics includes, but is not limited to, the theory of financial intermediation; banking and the real economy; nonbank financial institutions; fintech and blockchain; deposits and liquidity; relationship lending and small business finance; consumer finance and payment systems; syndicated lending and securitization; bank performance and risk; central banks and monetary policy; financial markets and market-making; financial crises and systemic risk; governance of financial institutions; international banking; and financial regulation.

To submit a paper, follow the instructions on the conference website at go.depaul.edu/CFIC. There is a $30 submission fee. Authors will be notified of decisions by late December. For additional information about the Chicago Financial Institutions Conference or questions regarding paper submission, please email Lamont Black at lblack6@depaul.edu.
