

The Maurins

Lawrence and Ann Maurin were conservationists and visionaries by nature. When they purchased about 20 acres of abused land in 1955 they envisioned it as a quiet place to “escape the everyday pressures of city life” but soon realized that it was even much more than that. They began planting trees and shrubs, removing loads of garbage dumped on the land, and restoring the existing habitat with the vision that native wildlife would return to the land. As the land began to heal, the wildlife soon returned.

They were visionaries again in 1979 when they donated their 20 acres to the City of West Bend as their “gift and legacy to the people”. You too can help make the legacy last by becoming a member of the Maurin Society; those individuals who have named Friends of Lac Lawrann Conservancy in their estate planning.

“Always remember, Conservation is respecting the rights of all living things, that have been created by God and molded by Nature to make ours a world of wonder and beauty.”

Lawrence Maurin
