To Whom it May Concern,

Let me start by saying I have no doubt that you can reach your goals with or without me and the following information is only my humble opinion. I believe that when two or more minds come together a third and more powerful mind is created. My goal is always to leverage this third mind to develop a strategic relationship in alignment with your company's financial goals and cultural objectives by creating momentum through the recruitment, training, and retention of Independent Distributors and Customers.

I've provided a lengthy biography so that you can get a good understanding of my skill set to determine the possibility of working together to grow your business.

I look forward to further discussions.

Best Regards,
