PORTLAND, Ore. – The Portland Ballet presents John Clifford’s A Midsummer Night’s Dream, a witty confection of a ballet, on Thanksgiving weekend. Produced in collaboration with the PSU orchestra, under the direction of Ken Selden, Midsummer is danced to Felix Mendelssohn’s gorgeous music, which is performed live at all concerns. More than 80 TPB dancers, including three sets of identical twins, will be joined by guest artists Josh Murry-Hawkins, who will reprise his role as the charming ruffian Bottom, and Seth Parker, who will return to the TPB stage as the noble Theseus. Two soloists from PSU’s acclaimed opera program will also join the cast.

Created especially on TPB and premiered in 2011, this amusing and elegant adaptation of Shakespeare’s comedy showcases a variety of challenging choreography: the fleet-footedness of fairies, the antics of rustics, and the style and grace of nobility. The magic begins with excited buzzing in the enchanted forest and ends with a grand pas de deux to celebrate a royal wedding. Along the way, fairies feud and stir up mischief, a merry buffoon turns into a donkey, and the queen of the fairies falls in love with him.

TPB’s Thanksgiving production is an annual tradition with original choreography, staging, sets, costumes, and live music. The whole show at PSU’s Lincoln Hall moves along quickly in only one hour and 15 minutes. Tickets start at just $10 for all six performances, which are 2 and 5 p.m. Nov. 23-25. Purchase tickets at theportlandballet.org or 503-750-3157.

John Clifford, TPB artistic advisor and renowned choreographer of Midsummer observes, “Full of subplots and twists, at its heart Midsummer is all about love....” Clifford has performed in an opera version of Midsummer for Los Angeles Opera and in George Balanchine’s ballet version for New York City Ballet. A favored protégé of Balanchine, Clifford works regularly with TPB students and teaches approved dances from The George Balanchine Trust, providing a living connection to the most influential choreographer of modern times.

THE PORTLAND BALLET

Founded in 2001, The Portland Ballet is shaped by the vision, artistic experience, and family-centered sensibility of the founding directors. Artistic Director Nancy Davis and Executive Director Jim Lane trained at the School of American Ballet and enjoyed distinguished professional careers in companies throughout the U.S. After retiring as principal dancers of the Los Angeles Ballet – where their partnership onstage led to a marriage and family off the stage – they moved to Portland, Oregon, and founded The Portland Ballet.

Graduates have carried TPB’s reputation for excellence into advanced dance programs and professional companies throughout the U.S. and abroad. TPB alumni have gone on to dance with Pacific Northwest Ballet, Houston Ballet, Boston Ballet, Miami City Ballet, Saint Louis Ballet, Sacramento Ballet, Ballet West, Nevada Ballet Theatre, Royal Swedish Ballet, Eugene Ballet, Batsheva Dance Company, Maryinsky Ballet, Pennsylvania Ballet, and other professional companies.
