

YANQI LAKE KEMPINSKI HOTEL BEIJING

Kempinski has announced that its largest property in China, the Yanqi Lake Kempinski Hotel Beijing, will be unveiled in Autumn 2014.

Located 60km north of Beijing's city centre alongside the picturesque Yanqi Lake and boasting panoramic views of Yanshan Mountain and the Great Wall of China, the property is designed by international heavyweights DiLeonardo, Wilson Associates, Rockwell Group and Hirsch Bedner Associates. Shanghai Huadu Architect Design Co. is responsible for creating the 'rising sun' shape of the hotel, symbolic of the fast-developing economy of China.

Yanqi Lake Kempinski Hotel has a total of 595 guestrooms and suites, with 306 rooms located within the main building, a further 111 rooms at the State Guest House, and 178 rooms spread across twelve boutique properties situated on a private island. These low-rise structures will blend contemporary and traditional design with thematic décor, such as the Chinese Imperial Gardens of Beijing and Siheyuan, a traditional courtyard combined with modern elements.

The resort will be home to 14 bars and restaurants, a fitness centre and spa, a marina, and a Gary Player-designed 18-hole golf course. It will also feature some of the largest meeting facilities in mainland China with over 14,000m² of meeting space and the 1,850m² Kempinski Grand Ballroom.
