NAMI SMC Appreciation Luncheon
By Helen Greggans, NAMI member, past president, and volunteer

Mother Nature smiled by providing us with a lovely, sunny day at the Poplar Creek golf course restaurant for our annual “Appreciation Luncheon” on February 13th.

Foremost, it is WE who appreciate NAMI and all it has done and continues to do for us. Everyone in the room has been touched in some way and without its resource where would we be?

I arrived close to noon and was happy to meet fellow members Al and Norma Guaspari at the door. Debi Mechanic, NAMI office Volunteer Coordinator and Lee Nash, Education Coordinator, greeted us and provided us with a name tag and raffle ticket for the beautiful orchids and NAMI themed jewelry (earrings and a pin), which were raffled off towards the conclusion of the event. I joined Al and Norma who had chosen a nearby table where Terry Walker, one of our founders of NAMI, and her son Steven were seated. Our host Helene Zimmerman was busy at the microphone reviewing past accomplishments and plans for this year.

In attendance were many county leaders and representatives from service teams. The crowd introduced ourselves, some told a brief story which we all could relate to. The wonderful thing is so many of us, although having joined in the 80s, still feel grateful and loyal to the organization.

Just as the luncheon was being served, Ian Adamson, from the FAST Team and Mateo Lodge, joined us. An excellent meal included slices from a huge delicious carrot cake (sponsored by The Cakery, Burlingame).

The luncheon included honoring Detective Jim Coffman for his service to San Mateo County: making our community safer, wiser and more empathetic to individuals with a mental illness; broadening the scope of the way we now interact with a person in crisis; bringing about the change in police mentality and attitude; and for being a valuable resource.

Of course drawing the raffle tickets for orchids and jewelry got everyone excited! It was a fun event, enjoyed by all. Without the help of may volunteers and supporters, NAMI SMC could not do as much as it does! Thank you all!

In Memorium - Patsy Hollister
Art By and on Behalf of Mentally Ill Persons

It is with sadness that we advise you that Patsy Hollister, co-founder of NARSAD Artworks, passed away on Friday, February 17th. Founded 28 years ago by Patsy & her husband, Hal, they were tirelessly committed to this wonderful endeavor that they created. Patsy spent every day in the office during these years taking orders, speaking to customers, counseling callers about their troubled relatives or themselves, encouraging artists, and just getting to know people. She and Hal attended conferences yearly and many of you may have enjoyed them in person. Patsy was deeply loved by all who knew her, and was passionately committed to spreading the word about mental illness. She loved her time at NARSAD Artworks, devoted to the artists, the customers and the cause it represented.

NARSAD Artworks is approaching the monumental task of closing up shop as Hal, at 85 years, is ready to retire since his co-founder is no longer by his side. They are offering a last chance to order to help reduce inventory before closing. Unfortunately, the NARSAD Artworks website is no longer functional, please contact the NAMI office for the full email that shows your favorite cards.

Thank you so much for supporting this wonderful non-profit organization, NARSAD Artworks and the artists who have made it possible to create these meaningful products for almost 30 years. NARSAD Artworks will take orders through March 15th.

Dealing With Community Stress

Feeling overwhelmed? Here are some things you can do!

- Practice self-care: You can’t help others if you don’t take care of yourself! Go for a walk, meditate, or take time for lunch at work – do whatever you need to feel grounded and well-rounded.

- Reach out: Build bridges, not walls! Connecting with friends and community members who share your concerns will help you feel less isolated. Remember that you are not alone, and offer support to others too.

- Allow your feelings in: Avoiding negative emotions usually doesn’t work forever, and can leave you feeling emotionally drained. Allow yourself to experience pain and sadness, and remember that you are not your feelings. Allow yourself to cry – sometimes crying helps!

- Protect yourself: Know your rights and your responsibilities in case something happens when you are out and about.

- Set limits: Get involved and stay informed, but avoid burn-out by taking breaks from work, volunteering, and even media consumption. Setting limits helps maintain your sense of balance and optimism.

San Mateo’s New Jail Has No Place To Visit

Inmates

By Raphael Sperry, Special to the Mercury News, May 5, 2016

San Mateo County’s new Maple Street jail is not your typical jail. It features a computer lab, radiant floor heating, and even images of California nature on the walls, which is probably why Supervisor Adrienne Tissier calls it an example of “compassionate corrections.”

But one thing the brand new jail lacks is a visiting room. When family members travel to the jail to visit their incarcerated loved ones, they will “visit” via computer screen.

Unfortunately, San Mateo County is not the only county that has eliminated in-person visits. A report produced last year by the nonprofit Prison Policy Initiative found that 74 percent of jails nationwide that adopt video visitation use the technology to replace in-person visits. At least six counties in California have eliminated in-person visitation in one of their jails, even though face-to-face visitation is a correctional best practice.

The American Bar Association’s criminal justice standards clearly state, “Correctional officials should develop and promote other forms of communication between prisoners and their families, including video visitation, provided that such options are not a replacement for opportunities for in-person contact.”

Architects agree. The American Institute of Architects’ Academy of Architecture for Justice sustainable jail design guidelines, which I helped write, recommend that jails “provide robust option for video visitation without supplanting in-person visiting.”

Sheriffs like video visiting because it reduces movement within jails, saving staff time. But this is fools’ savings: Studies have shown that family visits are one of the best predictors of a successful reentry from jail to society, and even a single in-person visit can reduce recidivism by 13 percent. No research has studied video visitation’s impact on recidivism, but the lack of emotional connection and privacy are obvious.

Attorneys will always need to meet confidentially and in-person with their clients, and legal visits by video have already been surreptitiously recorded by jail authorities without the knowledge or consent of lawyers and their clients.

Last year, the Texas Legislature decided that Texas jails with video services must also offer in-person visits. California State Sen. Holly Mitchell of Los Angeles has introduced a worthy bill, Strengthening Family Connections: In-Person Visitation, that would protect in-person visits in California jails and juvenile facilities.

The lack of a visiting room isn’t the only problem with San Mateo’s new jail, however. From the get-go, the county could have safely reduced its jail population to the size where it would not have needed a new building at all, using bail reform and other common sense criminal justice measures.

But as an architect, I know how alluring the promise of a new building can be. It seems like a stronger statement of justice reform rather than simply letting people stay in their homes while awaiting trial.

Other California counties should take the lesson: Do everything you can to avoid the need to build a new jail, lest your best intentions end up depriving people of something as basic, and as essential, as a hug from your wife, husband, parent or child.

New NAMI Provider Education Program Based Seminar
Understanding Mental Illness - What people affected by mental illness want you to know.

A new 4-hour seminar based on the 15-hour NAMI Provider Education Program debuted at the Community Legal Services, East Palo Alto (CLSEPA) earlier this month. The seminar was very well received. Participants really liked the 3 person teaching team approach, and said how the seminar helped them understand the necessity of differentiating the symptoms from the person, and learning about the stages of recovery.

NAMI Provider Education is a staff development program for healthcare professionals who work directly with people experiencing mental illness. It is important to understand the unique challenges people and families experience when facing a mental health challenge: social isolation, complex family dynamics and the unpredictability of illness. This program offers your staff the tools they need to combine the medical and recovery models of care so they can better service your clients. The program is designed to help enhance the relationship you have with the person in your care, and with their family.

The seminar is geared for mental health professionals, support staff and organizations where clients have a mental health care component.

To learn more about the program, or to set up a seminar access http://namisanmateo.org/support/professionals, or contact Lee Nash, Education coordinator, at Education@namisanmateo.org, or 650-638-0800.

beautiful boy: A Father’s Journey Through His Son’s Addiction by David Sheff

Before Nic Sheff became addicted to crystal meth, he was a charming boy, joyous and funny, a varsity athlete and honor student adored by his two younger siblings. After meth, he was a trembling wraith who lied, stole, and lived on the streets. Beautiful Boy is a fiercely candid memoir that brings immediacy to the emotional rollercoaster of loving a child who seems beyond help.

Update on Serenity House

In December, the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors selected the contractor to begin the actual work on the renovation of the structure that will become Serenity House. It is expected to take a 4-5 months.

Serenity House will be a facility of respite where individuals with mental illness, who are not an immediate danger to themselves or others, can stay for a short period of time to stabilize. It will be operated by the county’s Behavioral Health and Recovery Services and is located on the campus of the San Mateo Medical Center. The plan is to provide a safe place for up to 10 days for 10 individuals with mental health issues who may have otherwise further declined and been taken to the hospital or to jail.

NAMI SMC has long advocated for such a place of respite with a safe and welcoming environment for adults where a person’s mental health can be assessed and treated to avoid reaching a more critical level of illness.

Hall of Fame Award Winner, Dana Foley

Earlier this year, NAMI SMC nominated Dana Foley - one of our co-teachers for our Peer to Peer (P2P) class and a co-facilitator of our now bi-monthly Connection Support Groups - for San Mateo County’s Mental Health & Substance Abuse Recovery Commission Hall of Fame Award. We were thrilled when advised that Dana would indeed be receiving the award. We submitted Dana for the award as she is an extremely compassionate and diligent teacher/mentor and support group facilitator; she relates very well to her peers, and is very comfortable sharing her lived experience.

Dana first heard about NAMI and our programs in 2013, and completed P2P class later that year. Since April 2015 when she completed her training to co-facilitate as a P2P Teacher, she has served as a Resource Specialist in October 2015, and subsequently co-taught 3 classes in 2016, helping more than 30 Peers, and is currently co-teaching the first P2P class of the year.

Dana enjoys working with NAMI, teaching and helping others because she likes to offer emotional support, provide access to vital resources and participate in advocacy at the county level. Also important to Dana is helping to prevent suicide in young high school students. To further help in this endeavor, Dana is also a trained presenter for NAMI’s in-school “Ending the Silence” presentations.

In her “spare time,” Dana is taking psychology classes online, enjoys yoga, and would like to have more time for meditation.

Dana is a phenomenal asset to NAMI SMC’s Peer support team! We are extremely fortunate to have her help us fulfill our mission.

After receiving her award, Dana started her acceptance speech “by dispelling any negative stigma I might carry with me up to the podium, as someone with mental illness. That is, I am not violent, mean, selfish or rude! I promise.”

Dana talked about some of the key lessons and important parts of her life that she felt might help others: how she was sensitive and shy right out of the womb!; how she suffered from a variety of allergies that made her so tired; how she had difficulties with socializing due to a primary focal sweating disorder and that she didn’t get to La Selva (a residential treatment center in Palo Alto) until she was in her 30’s, and how getting their earlier would have been most beneficial.

Some of the ideas Dana proposed to help others with mental illness included: screening middle and high school students for mental illness and allergies and other illnesses like Fibromyalgia that make attending school so difficult; renaming Schizophrenia and Schizoaffective disorder to get rid of the horrible stigma of the names, and finding a way to allow people with mental illness to be able to talk to authorities directly about any abuse they are experiencing, as currently, many of us are too scared to come forward.

In closing, Dana thanked Calvin Shelton for giving her a voice, and giving her a new community of people with mental health challenges to teach, understand, and advocate for.

“And I’d also like to thank Helene Zimmerman the Executive Director at NAMI San Mateo, and Lee Nash the Education Coordinator at NAMI San Mateo. They are both very dedicated to helping people with mental health challenges, and I’m proud to work with them. And last, but not least, I’d like to thank my dad, Richard Foley, for all his support over the years. He is the only family member that gives me support around my mental illness! And I love my mother, but she gets a “D” in mental illness….lol;-)”

Thank you Dana for all you do to make our P2P classes and Connection Support Groups so successful!
