

See Something? Say Something.

Riverside's architectural legacy is an intricate tapestry of historic neighborhoods and classic homes. Many owners consider themselves custodians and take every precaution to protect and maintain their home's integrity for future generations to enjoy. There are, however, some owners who do not hold these same values. For that reason, the City has a permitting system to ensure that the structures are safe and that the fabric of our community remains strong.

Any owner or authorized agent who intends to construct, enlarge, alter, repair, move, demolish, or change the occupancy of a building or structure must obtain the required permits from the City of Riverside.

If you come across a project that causes you concern, please contact the City of Riverside Code Enforcement through the City's 311 call center, or call Code Enforcement directly at (951) 826-5633. If you would rather have Old Riverside Foundation make the inquiry on your anonymous behalf, please e-mail us at info@oldriverside.org or call (951) 683-2725 and we'll help you say something.
