

STOP SEXUAL ASSAULT IN SCHOOLS (SSAIS.ORG)

SSAIS is spearheading the movement to address widespread sexual harassment and violence in K-12 schools by:

- Offering free educational materials and action plan for the K-12 audience
- Providing a one-stop website resource for Title IX in K-12 schools
- Raising Title IX awareness in local and national media
- Bringing investigations and policy change to school districts
- Supporting survivors and activists

“ We’re energized by a new group doing big work—Stop Sexual Assault in Schools. – National Women’s Law Center

We can’t afford to wait for this administration to enforce Title IX.

SSAIS plan for change at state and local levels:

- Raise awareness of widespread sexual harassment and violence in K-12 schools
- Disseminate education + tools to foster Title IX compliance in local schools
- Invigorate state and local Title IX Coordinators
- Develop affordable and practical materials for schools to become Title IX compliant
- Engage constituents to demand policy changes at the local and state levels

SSAIS believes that addressing the problem will take a massive movement of students and families who know what their Title IX rights are and demand that schools meet them. – The Washington Post

Collaboration is key

SSAIS invites organizations, educators, students, policymakers, advocates, activists, media, and funding entities to work with us to achieve our common goals.

INNOVATIVE TITLE IX EDUCATION VIDEO

Sexual Harassment: Not in Our School!

Sexual Harassment: Not in Our School! is an innovative video for K-12 parents, middle and high school students, schools, and community organizations. It's about gender equality in education, students' protections under Title IX, and much more.

As high school students plan for their new gender equality group, we watch them interview nationally recognized education, legal, and LGBTQ experts and learn from counselors, advocates, parents, and students. The video offers simple steps and engaging activities to make schools safer with equal learning spaces for all students.

The video is important for all levels of education and is sure to stimulate discussion and preventive action by students, parents, educators, Title IX Coordinators, and supporters of gender equity.
