“I am really thrilled to have the opportunity to celebrate New York’s choral riches on a weekly basis on WQXR,” said Kent Tritle. “Our debut program of holiday music – a coast-to-coast celebration of Judeo-Christian themes – sets the tone for the series by showcasing a broad spectrum of repertoire, from Josquin des Prez to Arvo Pärt, from George Frideric Handel to Nico Muhly and more, featuring New York’s own Voices of Ascension, the Los Angeles Master Chorale, the Hilliard Ensemble and other world class choral groups. And so we will continue!”

“Choral music is a vital and enduring part of the city's musical landscape, and so many WQXR listeners are active in the choral scene,” said Limor Tomer, Executive Producer of Music, WQXR. “We are delighted to create a platform on-air and online that brings together performers, composers and fans around this awe-inspiring genre. This show will not only serve as a meeting place for the existing choral music community, it will also introduce new listeners to the transformative power of choral music – the most participatory music genre in the canon.
