

MOOSE (Alces alces) The moose is the largest member of the deer family.

Males, called bulls, have antlers that are shed every year. Moose can stand six feet tall at the shoulder and are able to run 35 m.p.h. In Utah moose can be found in the northern and northeastern mountainous areas of the state. Moose are plant eaters and are active both during the day and at night. Do not approach or feed moose, and give them a lot of space to get away.
