We value our class sizes and from time to time, must use a wait pool to manage the blessing of growth. To be considered for admission (even for a class that has a wait pool), an application must be submitted and all forms and fees received. Every applicant typically experiences an academic evaluation and parents also set aside time for an interview with an administrator.

It is best for families to complete the admission process for two reasons. There may be other families who have applied and your student's enrollment could mean the school adds another section to the grade level. Secondly, occasionally spaces open up in the summer months and families already in wait pool would very likely have priority over a new application.
