

CHILDREN'S BOOKS ABOUT CEREBRAL PALSY

Cerebral Palsy:

Rolling Along: The Story of Taylor and His Wheelchair

Taylor's twin brother helps him to learn new skills in his wheelchair.

Nathan's Wish: A Story about Cerebral Palsy

This is a story about a boy with Cerebral Palsy caring for an injured bird. Caring for the bird shows Nathan that even with physical challenges, there are important ways to help.

Taking Cerebral Palsy to School

Covers different types of CP and how individuals are affected very differently.

Patrick and Emma Lou

This book is about children encouraging each other as they learn to use their walkers.

Here's What I Mean to Say

Ann learns to read using a computer with her foot.

Can't You Be Still?

Ann goes to school for the first time. She learns about Cerebral Palsy, especially about her wild right and her magic boots.

Oral/Communication:

Sarah's Surprise

Six year old Sarah is unable to talk. She has a wish that is for more ability to express herself than mere talking! With the help of her speech therapist she progresses from a picture board to an augmentative communication device and to a birthday surprise for her mother.

General Disability:

Hugs, Handshakes and High Fives

Super powers ... that's what Travis has - the ability to bring people together! This is a delightful story about a super-child named Travis who has the uncanny ability to brighten people's thoughts about how they look at and treat others - all by using hugs, handshakes and high fives.

I'm Like You, You're Like Me

People are both alike and different in many ways.

We Can Do it!

This book shows five pre-school children, each with a disability, leading full, productive and happy lives because they believe We Can Do It!