Republic Services Offering Seven Eco-Friendly Back To School Tips

As students in Klickitat County get set to begin the new school year, Republic Services is encouraging parents, teachers, and administrators to incorporate sustainable practices whenever possible with seven back to school tips.

“Environmental responsibility is not always top of mind when preparing to go back to school,” said Pete Keller, Republic’s vice president of recycling and sustainability. “When you incorporate one sustainable practice into your daily routine, you can make a lasting environmental impact. Back to school is the perfect time to start adopting better habits you and your whole family can practice.”

Republic suggests practicing these useful tips as families and schools begin the new school year:

Plan: Make a list before you shop for school supplies to limit impulse buying.

Repurpose: Before shopping for new back-to-school items, sort through old supplies. Many from last year can be reused or repurposed.

Buy Smart: Whenever possible, purchase supplies made from recycled or reused products.

Reuse: Bring drinks in a thermos or reusable water bottle and be sure to recycle milk cartons, bottles or other recyclable containers.

Pack it Up: If packing lunch from home, use reusable containers and carry them in a reusable bag or lunch box.

Volunteer: Find out if your school has a recycling program, and take part. If not, team up with administrators and teachers to start a recycling program that works for your school.

Empty, Clean & Dry: Always make sure your recyclables are empty, clean, and dry before tossing them in the recycling bin.

The new school year is the perfect time to identify and minimize the impact of individual activities on the local environment. For example, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), food waste is the second largest category of municipal solid waste and is a significant contributor to greenhouse gas emissions. Based on USDA calculations, approximately 31% of all food from home and school goes uneaten, and is eventually discarded.

It’s Heating Up in Cougar Country

The 2017-18 school year is upon us and Lyle Community Schools is eager and ready to serve each of our pre-K to 12 scholars!

It seems like just yesterday we were celebrating the class of 2017 at graduation and looking forward to summer break. After three full months of preparation, continued improvements, staff changes and eager excitement, the Lyle staff is ready to roll.

Lyle will open the 2017-18 school year with two vibrant and active pre-school classrooms. Our pre-school is ECEAP licensed and also community self-pay. Our goal is to welcome each of our three and four-year-olds through the doors of Cougar Country so that each small scholar has all of the skills necessary to navigate kindergarten successfully.

We are continuing to revise our service and supports for K-6 students by eliminating some assessments that weren’t giving us a true measure of our kids’ skills and talents and creating a district assessment system that will allow us to accelerate students performing above grade level and provide additional support to kids who need extra help.

Our middle school and high school staff continue to increase offerings for students, working to differentiate and provide each student what they need to graduate prepared for the next steps in their life. We work individually with students to craft a schedule that challenges them academically, offers opportunities to explore and connects them to life after high school.

We have added an alternative program that provides even more flexibility and invites students who may have disengaged from school to come back and rekindle their spark of learning. In 2017-18 we’ll have more students involved in Running Start, earning college credit simultaneously with high school credit, than ever before in school history. Music, the arts, physical education building and construction and drama all provide opportunities for kids to explore their personal interests and grow.

Parents, grandparents and community....we need you! We know that you are the first and best teacher of our kids. We are so thankful to you for trusting us with your most precious commodity and we want to partner with you for their success.

Our school team is ready and willing to help with any need or concern that you might have. You can find all staff email addresses on the Lyle School District Web Page.

We look forward to a wonderful year with many highlights to come. Please don’t hesitate to contact me directly if I can help/support in any way.

Book Report

By Judy Bane

Jordan Harper's first novel, "She Rides Shotgun", is a sanguinary crime novel with heart. Nate McClusky is an ex-con ("all muscles and dragons and gunfighter eyes") who gets crosswise with the Aryan Steel gang ("all the dirty whiteboys in California"). He shanked the brother of its leader Crazy Craig Hollington in his last days at Pelican Bay State Prison. Crazy Craig puts out a warrant to the Steel's gang network on the outside to execute Nate, his ex-wife and his 11-year-old daughter, Polly--a precocious kid with few friends and an odd attachment to a beat-up teddy bear. When Nate is released early, he picks up Polly at her Fontana middle school and scares her into taking off with him in his stolen car with a command: "You're coming with me. Right now, no time for fuss." And then they're off on a wild odyssey of violence, righteous retribution and father-daughter bonding.

A screenwriter for TV shows like Gotham and The Mentalist, Jordan first tapped into crime fiction with the story collection Love and Other Wounds. He knows how this game is played. Introspective, shy Polly grows up fast in the company of her crime-hardened father. In fits and starts, Nate cultivates the family connection he needs and wants. She Rides Shotgun is a True Grit sort of saga, but on hot-wired horsepower instead of horseback. With Harper's storytelling chops, it's a rolling hell-bent adventure with all the snappy dialogue and action of the best noir fiction. --Bruce Jacobs, founding partner, Watermark Books & Cafe, Wichita, Kan.

Goldendale Community Library Remodel

It's been over 30 years since Goldendale Community Library was last remodeled—and it could use some work! Through generous donations, we're planning to upgrade this 1915 original Carnegie library for the coming decades.

This $1 million project will be funded from three different sources:

The Wilma Olsen Fund. From an original donation of just over $100,000, the fund has grown to over $500,000 thanks to careful investment. After discussions with the donor's family, we plan to use this money to refurbish the second floor.

A bequest from Shirley Ann Iams. Shirley was a Goldendale native who ended her decades-long career as a librarian with Seattle Public Library. When she passed away on October 6, 2016, she left the Goldendale library a sizable bequest totaling nearly $180,000 to date. We'll use this bequest to remodel the children's area.

FVRL capital reserve. FVRL has money set aside for capital projects, and we'll use some of this reserve for infrastructure repair: upgrading windows and lighting, replacing the concrete steps, and improving the staff area in the basement.

After holding public meetings in the fall of 2016, we worked out some designs and will be finalizing plans later this summer. Our goal is to maintain the classic Carnegie library character while improving flow and usability. We don't have a start date yet, but we'd like to complete the work in the coming year.

Here's what we're planning to do:
New furniture, carpet and paint throughout the building

New shelving upstairs and in the children's area

ADA accessibility upgrades to the restrooms

New areas for teens and for quiet reading

New LED lighting and energy efficient windows
Exterior repairs
We'll have temporary library services available in a convenient location (to be determined). And the Goldendale/Klickitat Bookmobile will also continue its normal schedule.

Community Council Corner

By PJ Sisseck

Council Report for Aug. 10th. meeting.

Many areas of Dallesport are considered “Perched Wetlands”, meaning they rest above an impervious layer of basalt rock. The soil above collects rain water and snow melt that does not drain, but only evaporates. This creates a unique environment, allowing for the growth of aquatic plants, and habitat for aquatic animals. The whole system is listed on the National Registry.

It has come to the attention of the Department of Ecology, the Department of Wildlife, and the Army Corps of Engineers that some building permits have been issued in error, due to an unclear boundary, and ignorance of the seventy-foot buffer zone.

A representative of the Department of Ecology has been/will be in the area to properly delineate the wetland area. It is not known at this time whether any structures will have to be removed, or if other remediation measures will be undertaken. But no further building permits will be allowed in the Perched Wetlands.

Murdock’s new water system has had good success in well-drilling. As of 10 August, they were at 246 feet of the planned 650 depth, and have good flow.

Please join us for the next Council meeting on September 14th. 7pm at the Dallesport Community Center.

Man Arrested For Vehicular Homicide

By Brandon Cline

A Dallesport man was arrested by the Klickitat County Sheriff’s Office and charged with Vehicular Homicide on July 30, after a four-year-old child died in an ATV accident about nine miles west of Goldendale.

Cody Sallee, 24, was allegedly doing ‘donuts’ on an ATV with Robert Perkins—who was holding his own two children in his lap—in the passenger seat when it flipped over. The roll bar, which is supposed to limit the impact in the event of the ATV flipping over, apparently landed on the four-year-old’s head, pinning the child underneath the ATV.

According to court documents, Perkins said he and Sallee got the four-year-old out from under the ATV, but the child was not breathing. Perkins told detectives that he and Sallee jumped into a vehicle and raced into Goldendale, with Perkins starting CPR on his child. After arriving at the Goldendale Fire Department to meet an ambulance, the child was declared dead by medics.

Another child, 2, was checked by medics and transported to Klickitat Valley Hospital.

Deputies say that Sallee admitted to drinking earlier in the day and had drunk some shots of vodka after the accident occurred. Perkins told deputies that he and Sallee had been golfing earlier in the day, and that he had seen Sallee drink “at least” a couple of beers but was unsure of the total amount, according to court documents.

Klickitat County Prosecuting Attorney David Quesnel charged Sallee with Vehicular Homicide on July 31. In Washington State, Vehicular Homicide is a class A felony with a maximum penalty of life in prison without the possibility of parole, and/or a fine. Goldendale Sentinel

Sharing the Road with School Buses

If you’re driving behind a bus, allow a greater following distance than if you were driving behind a car. It will give you more time to stop once the yellow lights start flashing. It is illegal in all 50 states to pass a school bus that is stopped to load or unload children.

Never pass a bus from behind – or from either direction if you’re on an undivided road – if it is stopped to load or unload children

If the yellow or red lights are flashing and the stop arm is extended, traffic must stop

The area 10 feet around a school bus is the most dangerous for children; stop far enough back to allow them space to safely enter and exit the bus.

Be alert; children often are unpredictable, and they tend to ignore hazards and take risks

Veterans' Memories Come To Life Through 'Dream Flights'

By Jesse Burkhardt

A group of veterans from the Oregon Veterans' Home were on hand at Columbia Gorge Regional Airport last month. Four veterans went up in the Ageless Aviation biplane, while others were there just to enjoy the show.

The concept behind Ageless Aviation Dreams Foundation is in the organization's motto: "Giving back to those who have given." The devotion inherent in the motto was recently on display at the Columbia Gorge Regional Airport in Dallesport.

Ageless Aviation, a non-profit organization dedicated to honoring seniors and U.S. military veterans, returned to The Dalles area Aug. 15 for the third year in a row to literally "give a lift" to a group of veterans from the Oregon Veterans' Home (OVH).

"They come up every year, usually in August," said Jade Lange, recreation director for the OVH. "We go out and ask who would like to go on an airplane ride, and we fill out applications for how many veterans want to go up. It also depends on their level of cognition and physical ability because most of the veterans are in their 80s or 90s."

The foundation, based in Carson City, Nev., is a volunteer team that is funded solely by donations from individuals and companies. Pilots travel around the nation to honor the sacrifices of those who helped make this country what it is. The "dream flights," which last 20 to 25 minutes each, are provided at no charge.

"We honor our veteran heroes by taking them back in time to a place where they ruled the sky as proud military aviators ... Ageless Aviation Dreams Foundation is dedicated to every senior, living and deceased, who helped build this great nation," reads an excerpt from the organization's mission statement. "We want to let their memory live on in every Dream Flight flown from this day forward."

Last Tuesday, four veterans went up in a Boeing Stearman biplane – an aircraft that was often used to train military aviators in the

"This experience for our veterans is very exciting and rewarding, both for the people going up in the plane and for those watching from the ground and assisting," said Chris Haugen, volunteer coordinator for OVH in The Dalles. "They come back very happy and feeling about 20 years younger."

"You can see it takes years off their age. We call it the time machine," added Christopher Culp, who described himself as "a proud volunteer pilot" for Ageless Aviation.

Culp, who operated the biplane during Tuesday's flights, retired from the Oregon State Police after 28 years as a pilot. He said he got involved because he was "looking for something positive to do."

"This felt like a great project," said Culp, who lives in Salem.

"Each year they take a new group of veterans up, and the residents and staff look forward to this amazing opportunity," Haugen said. "The idea is to give back to those who have given all of us so much through their service in the military."

One of the first to fly last Tuesday was Alice Tatone, a Navy veteran who served in World War II. "WAVES" stood for "Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service," a women's unit formed in 1942. The purpose of the WAVES was to release men for sea duty by replacing them with women at the bases on shore.

Tatone, who is 95, said she appreciated being able to take a flight.

"I really enjoyed it," she said quietly while sitting next to the plane after it landed.

Tatone showed she still has a wonderful sense of humor. She made a date with the pilot to go up again when she turns 100.

Although she enjoyed going up in the biplane, Tatone said she had one complaint: Because she is short, she had trouble seeing a lot from the cockpit.

"A pillow would have helped," she said.

Tatone is one of a relatively small number of World War II veterans still living. According to the Department of Veterans Affairs, as of 2017 only about 500,000 of the 16 million Americans who served the nation in World War II are alive today.

Others who flew Tuesday included Jerry Bailey, 69, who served in the Army during the Vietnam War. He said he used to fly for fun with his brother, who was a pilot, and was very happy to fly again.

Jim Frankfother, 80, an Army veteran who served in Korea waits in the front seat of the Boeing Stearman just before his biplane flight last Tuesday. Inset, the colorful logo of Ageless Aviation Dreams Foundation is shown on the tail of a Boeing Stearman biplane.

Jim Frankfother, 80, who served in the Army, was another of the vets who went up. Frankfother's military service included duty in Korea. He had an interest in flying when he was a boy, but never pursued it in his military career.

"In World War II, I wanted to be a pilot," he said.

When Culp asked Frankfother if he wanted to go for a ride, the veteran appeared to think about it.

"Let's try it," he said after a moment, giving a thumb's up signal. "Let's go for a spin."

David Dierks, 74, who was in the Air Force and served in Vietnam, also went up in the Stearman. Dierks was once a pilot of light aircraft, and joked that he would be ready to take over the controls from Culp if needed.

Another OVH resident shuttled to the airport last Tuesday was Larry Greene, who served in the Army in Vietnam. Greene wasn't able to go on a flight this time around, but said he enjoyed watching the others go airborne. He pointed out that he hadn't flown much at all in his life, but he did recall two very important flying experiences during his time in the military.

"Just there and back – Vietnam," he said.

OVH staffers praised the assistance of the Dalles-port/Murdock Fire Department and EMS crews as "invaluable for our experience." The firefighters literally helped lift some of the elderly veterans into the open cockpit seat so they could take a ride.

"We couldn't do this without the Dallesport Fire Department. They've been amazing," said Lange.

"This is a super team effort," added Mike Allegre, quality of life coordinator for Veterans Care Centers of Oregon, based in Salem.

After the day's flights, the staffers who brought the veterans to the airport said they loved the assignment.

"Everything went great," Lange said. "I've got a special place in my heart in regards to veterans. I have worked at OVH for 15 years now, and feel so blessed and honored to be serving the wonderful men and women who fought for my freedoms. Events like today remind me of what a great place I work, and why I do what I do."

School Facility Improvement Advisory Committee Forming

Lyle School District is seeking community members to serve on a facilities improvement advisory committee for approximately one year. Meetings begin in September and will take place just before the monthly board meeting, 5-6 p.m., in the school library. With the district's funding stabilizing and the potential for capital (facilities) funding from the state, the board of directors has requested the superintendent establish a facilities improvement advisory committee to study the condition of the district's buildings and related facilities, prioritize the work needed and determine approximate costs.

Ultimately, the committee will provide their recommendations to the superintendent and board of directors. To sign up to serve on the committee, go to www.lyleschools.org/Page/458.

Mentor For Success

Mentor For Success, a program of The Next Door, matches teenage youth with caring and supportive adult volunteers in Wasco, Hood River, and Klickitat Counties. We identify teenagers who, for whatever reason, don't already have that positive adult presence in their lives--that person to teach them new chords on the guitar, show them how to fly fish, or just sit with them and listen. Mentor For Success has youth waiting to be matched NOW in Dallesport, The Dalles, and Lyle.

Youth Spotlight: Sarah in Dallesport

Seeking a responsible and caring adult to serve as a mentor to 16-year-old Sarah in Dallesport. Sarah is very artistic—she loves to draw, dance, sing, write, and act. The programming will include flute music by Foster Kalama, tulle mat making demonstrations by Taaw-lee-Winch, traditional Indian games and drumming with Jefferson Greene, a Northwest Twined Pouch Workshop by Pat Courtney Gold, and local craft vendors. A salmon lunch and Indian fry bread will be available for purchase on a first come first served basis beginning at 12:00 noon.

"We want to offer the opportunity for local indigenous peoples to showcase their culture and history at our facility," said Executive Director Carolyn Purcell. This is part of an ongoing Indigenous Voices Project funded in part by grants from Trust Management Services, Oregon Historic Trails Fund and Wy'East Fund of Oregon Community Foundation, and Oregon Folklife Network.
