➤ JENNY

Hi, I'm Jenny, your cruise director.
How can I help you get settled?

BEVERLY

Well, Jenny, we just got the shocking news that this is an Arctic tour and we're wondering if there's anything fun to do on board. How's the pool?

➤ JENNY

Ooh, closed. We drain it. Otherwise it becomes a block of ice.

BEVERLY

Which we can skate on?

➤ JENNY

I wish! The ice expands and can crack the hull -- it's called glacial splintering. I'm one of the few people who have seen it and lived.

BEVERLY

Good for you. Well, what kind of entertainment do you have?

➤ JENNY

So much. On a good day, you can see the desolate horn of Greenland. Or eat what the Vikings ate -- mostly cold creamed fish. Or take an exhilarating speed boat through a deadly ice berg field.

BEVERLY

Follow up question: why the FUCK does anyone go on a trip like this?

➤ JENNY

Yeah, I field that one often. Onboard this vessel you may get a glimpse of the Northern Lights. It's rare, but it happens.

BEVERLY

That's something. Are they beautiful?

➤ JENNY

Oh, I wouldn't know. But I've only been on this boat for many years.

BEVERLY

Dammit, ice boat Jenny! Name one activity that my miserable husband and his grumpy father can do!

JENNY

I guess there's bingo.

BEVERLY

Bingo! I love it. I mean, I don't love it, but it's good enough and that's all we can hope for.

JENNY

I see you know our ship's motto.

As my mom was striking out, Geoff and Erica were settling in.

It's cluttered with crafting supplies. Erica lays on a futon while Geoff makes a bed out of an old beanbag.

GEOFF

Isn't this great? Our first Hanukkah with my family.

ERICA

Yeah, I was kinda nervous, because I always thought your family was so normal and perfect.

GEOFF

Totally. Wait, what are you talking about? They are perfect.

Dude, c'mon, your sister.

GEOFF

Joanne?

Yeah, Jojobean. Your parents totally favor her.

GEOFF

What?! That's not true.
