

Lake Havasu club helping to prevent accidents in abandoned mines.

Video Story
By Suzanne Nogami

Wednesday, April 4, 2012

Lake Havasu is known as a popular spring break destination for students, but in the 1800's it was a mining community. The miners are long gone, but their century old shafts are still around. Cronkite News Reporter Suzanne Nogami went to Lake Havasu to see what workers are doing to make the place safe.

Watch Now (<http://player.vimeo.com/video/39739292>)

<http://cronkitenewsonline.com/2012/04/lake-havasu-club-is-helping-prevent-accidents-in-abandoned-mines/>