Give a book for a special occasion

Members are encouraged to consider the collection of books we have at the EVHS office for special gifts. J. B. Tate’s recent Sketches of Bartow County has been a popular item this past year. Also others such as In and Out of the Lines, The General – The Great Locomotive Dispute, Allatoona Pass: A Needless Effusion of Blood, Mattie Lee Price – The Georgia Wonder, and many more. You may purchase online or go by the office.
After a decade of being closed to the public, EVHS hosted a return to the historic Corra Harris property known as "In The Valley" located in Pine Log/Rydal, Georgia.

Between 85 to 90 attendees enjoyed a reception, self-guided tour of the grounds, fellowship, box dinner, and lecture about a recently discovered and unknown collection of letters written by Corra Harris.

Jordan Gentry, Kennesaw State University intern, presented her senior research capstone paper on findings about a very private side of Corra Harris. The letters reveal insights on Harris’ personal family issues, business matters and personal struggles regarding the proper role for women. Her public image as a writer contrasted keenly compared to what she privately shared in these letters relating to women as head of household, voting rights, marriage, children and career ambitions. Corra advocated in these private letters that women should enjoy greater rights and not be delegated to predetermined traditional roles. However, her writings more often depicted traditional roles, images and stories that fit the times in which she lived.

Some sixteen letters and legal files were shared from the archives of Akin and Tate attorneys. These documents and artifacts have been housed at the in the Akin Law Firm since the 1920’s. Paul Akin served as Corra Harris’ attorney and financial advisor. An examination of these letters disclosed that Corra Harris had a very close and personal relationship with Mrs. Joy Akin and often confided very private issues to both Mrs. Akin and Paul Akin depending on the topic.

The Tabernacle and Female College
_Fading Monuments to the Legacy of Reverend Sam P. Jones_
By: Joe F. Head

Among Bartow County’s many legends stands Rev. Sam Jones who is perhaps the greatest homegrown celebrity Cartersville has ever produced. Also long forgotten are two monuments to his memory, the Tabernacle and Female Academy.

No other individual or event can match the throngs of people who were drawn to Cartersville to hear his blistering sermons. For twenty years prior to his death Sam Jones drew as many as 6000 people per day to his revivals and over 20,000 people over a two-week period. With the exception of a one-night state championship football game no other event or person has drawn such crowds. Often called the Billy Graham of the 1890’s, Jones was the nearest thing to a major league voice that the south ever had to that time.

His sermons and national evangelistic reach are legendary. Sam Jones vigorously preached from Cartersville to California to Chicago and Boston. He made a religious imprint across the nation for over two decades and was a highly sought after speaker. As an example of his popularity, many don’t know that Nashville’s Ryman Auditorium was built for him to hold his revivals and following his death, it became the mother church for Grand Ole Opry.

However, the epicenter of his service and preaching was here at his now forgotten Tabernacle. Once located on West Main and Lee Street where the current day Cartersville/Bartow County Library stands today was an old style camp meeting site and what appeared as an open air picnic pavilion. Here thousands of people came annually to hear the gospel. The choir rostrum was upgraded to hold 1200 singers.
Few people realize that the Tabernacle was laid out on a 10 acre site and was established under a private board of trustees. On that same tract of land a small parcel was quickly deeded over to a separate board to establish the Sam Jones Female College. Sam Jones paid for the construction of the Tabernacle out of his own pocket, but not so with the Female College. The college faced what was then Market Street (now Cherokee) next to the former Cherokee Elementary School (now County Extension Office) and Lee Street. It is also known (aka) as the Sam Jones College, Sam Jones Female Academy and Sam Jones Female Seminary.

The Female College did not enjoy the same success as did the Tabernacle, but did become the City of Cartersville’s first public high school. Also, contrary to some innocent local belief, the Tabernacle nor College was ever under the authority of the Sam Jones Memorial United Methodist Church.

The story of Rev. Sam Jones has been well told over the past century. However, his Tabernacle and Female College were rarely cited and have not been covered nor understood regarding origin, operations, management and what became of these facilities. (continued page 8)
BIBLE CONFERENCE
AT JONES TABERNACLE

Where great Bible conference will be held during this month.

THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN AND NEWS.

Special to The Georgian,
Carterville, Ga., Sept. 7.—For twenty-one years Rev. Sam P. Jones held an annual tabernacle meeting at Cartersville, Ga. At the last tabernacle meeting he planned for a possible conference to be conducted at the day services and evangelistic services at night. After his death the committee decided to carry out as far as possible his wishes, and has arranged for a Bible conference to be held September 19 to 22. The following speakers have been secured for the text:

Music will be in charge of Messrs. Rhoades, and Rev. and Mrs. Hamil will play the piano. Arrangements will be made to furnish entertainment at reasonable prices, and the railroads will be asked to give reduced rates.

September 19—11 a.m., opening service by Rev. W. A. Holcomb, 3 p.m., service by Rev. H. E. Oliver, 6:30 p.m., Bible meeting, conducted by Rev. Melvin Trotter; 8 p.m., evangelistic service by W. E. Rudeford.

September 20—8:30 a.m., French E. Oliver; 11 a.m., W. E. Rudeford; 3 p.m., French E. Oliver; 6:30 p.m., Bible meeting, conducted by J. A. Bowden; 8 p.m., evangelistic service by W. E. Rudeford.

September 21—8:30 a.m., experience meeting, conducted by J. A. Bowden; 11 a.m., French E. Oliver; 3 p.m., Melvin Trotter; 5 p.m., evangelistic service by W. E. Rudeford.

September 22—9 a.m., experience meeting, conducted by J. A. Bowden; 11 a.m., W. T. Ezell; 3 p.m., W. E. Rudeford; 5 p.m., evangelistic service by W. E. Rudeford.

Late Sam P. Jones

Who planned the annual Bible conference just before his untimely death.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO MEMORY OF
REV. SAM P. JONES

Nearly 6,000 People Attend Service Sunday At Cartersville.

Special to The Georgian.
Carterville, Ga., Sept. 19.—A crowd of over 6,000 people gathered at the Sam Jones Tabernacle in this city yesterday to pay tribute to the memory of the great evangelist whose death came shortly after the close of the annual meetings that were held here last year at this time.

This was the opening day of the Sam Jones Bible conference, an institution that was organized by Mr. Jones before leaving home on his last journey. The first day was placed upon the program as Memorial day in honor of the evangelist’s memory. There were no names advertised by the railroads, but it was seen as the meeting transparent that there would be as many people in the city as came to the meetings during the lifetime of Mr. Jones.

Rev. Walter Holcomb, who was the co-worker of Mr. Jones during his 22 months of the evangelist’s life, and who was the first to be heard of his death in the Pullman car at Atlanta, preached the memorial service at 11 o’clock. Mr. Holcomb arrived from North Carolina, where he has been in attendance upon the bedside of his aged mother. His own sorrow, and that of the people who loved the memory of Mr. Jones, filled them with a peculiar sympathy and attitude toward each other, and made the people greatly receptive of the sermon delivered by the young minister.

Mr. Holcomb said, in part, of Sam Jones: “This memory remains in our hearts, and the memory will remain as the Rosary of the death of the beloved. The people, the memories, the works, the achievements of Sam Jones are eternally blessed. We shall remember his name as long as the heart of man can carry memories.”

His text was “Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house, and the place where Thy glory dwelleth.”

The great human shadow, with its piercing, searing light, was a reality that could not be denied. The beam that passed from the heart of the tabernacle, to the hearts of the audience, was the great shadow that cast its shadow on the congregation.

This sentiment was applauded, after which the great human shadow was given in honor of Mr. Jones. A loud applause greeted the announcement. The effect of the great human shadow was tremendous, and was with him at the time of his death.

Before these two monuments totally fade from memory it is the intent of EVHS to gather this story and document it for the purpose of preserving a more complete story of Sam Jones. Watch for a future announcement regarding a full article addressing this project.

EVHS member Victor Mulinix discusses his photo of historic Ladd's Mountain with Debbie Head. A collection of Victor’s photography is on display at the Cartersville/Bartow Library through July. The Ladd’s Mountain image was featured in J. B. Tate’s recent book, Sketches of Bartow County and was the site of two EVHS field trips. Victor and his wife Marty both volunteer at the EVHS office and reside in Kingston where he enjoys many hobbies. He is a grill master, wood craftsman, vintner (wine maker), gardener and local historian as well as a keen photographer. Victor is a valued EVHS member having served as a board member and newsletter editor. He is always present at Society events and posts images on the EVHS Facebook page.
Georgia Farm Bureau Celebrates Eighty Years

Recently the Georgia Farm Bureau celebrated its 80th anniversary in Cartersville, but few people realize it all began in Bartow County. In June, the Farm Bureau returned to its roots and held its annual meeting at the Clarence Brown Conference Center.

Eighty years ago a group of farmers from seven counties in northwest Georgia met at the 1903 Bartow County courthouse on June 17, 1937 at the request of Bartow County farmer Robert M. Stiles. He believed there was a need for a farmer-led organization to support Georgia agriculture. The result of this meeting was the formation of the United Georgia Farmers.

The organization that would become Georgia Farm Bureau was officially created on July 31, 1937 in Bartow County. Fifty Georgia “dirt farmers” representing 25 counties attended this first Assembly of Delegates, and one of their first orders of business was the election of Mr. Stiles as president.

Along with mining, farming was an anchor industry in Cass/Bartow County from its founding. EVHS showcased the heritage of agriculture recently by creating a digital historical farming map that features the Farm Bureau, Genetics Institute, Dairies, Cotton, Grist Mills and other farming production.

As a symbolic token to the now Macon based Bureau’s anniversary, a granite monument has been placed at the 1903 Gold Dome Court House to commemorate the founding.
Josh Shapiro, KSU Geographic Information Sciences student works on a new interactive map for our digital gallery collection. His project is to research and illustrate the historic railroads of Bartow County. Most people do not realize Bartow has had a half dozen stand alone railroad beds that once served our county. Many of these lines have been used by multiple railroad companies.

Jordan Gentry, KSU intern works on her senior capstone project. Recently discovered in the office of attorney Morgan Akin is a collection of some 16 unknown personal letters written by Corra Harris. These letters and legal files have never been seen by the public and reveals a fresh chapter to the writer’s life. Each letter has been fully transcribed and will be available for membership review or others who may wish to do further research on the legacy of Corra Harris.
