Lupe Rose is the Founder & CEO of SHE Beverage Company, The SHE Brand and a WFLA partner to five of the 32 teams, including the following three; Los Angeles Fames, the Las Vegas Devils and the San Francisco Cranes. During a recent scouting combine and jamboree held in Carson, CA., Rose stated "We've had hundreds of athletes here to showcase their skills, and some have flown in from around the world; as far away as Australia – that's the drive we are looking for in our athletes". She continues; "It feels really good to have so many participants come out ready to make herstory as part of the WFLA."

Many of these female athletes have been dreaming of the chance to play the game professionally since they were young girls. Paige Robinson's mother didn't allow her to play football growing up, no matter how much she loved the game. Robinson wants people to see the variety of talent she possesses and stand out for her incredible speed.

Christina Shelby holds the record for deadlift and put her lifting training on hold so she could hire a coach to teach her football drills and help her improve her overall agility and Jordan Munford only had four weeks to train when she heard about the WFLA combine and jamboree, but she jumped on the opportunity anyway because it was something she always thought would never happen and she didn't want to let this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity pass her by.

NFL star "Big Tex", otherwise known as Tyrell Robinson, will be working with the San Diego Waves and states; "There's so many athletic women that don't get a chance to showcase their athletic ability". "I want to show that women can do the same thing men do as well." A shared vision with the WFLA, no doubt. Other attendees include Rob Sheets Agent to the NFL, who is partaking in this monumental announcement and seeks to acquire Female Athletes in the professional sport of football.

The WFLA will be like no other professional football organization you have seen. It will be better. Get ready, be ready, stay ready football fans - The WFLA is here to stay!
