We are thankful for you!
Greetings Dahlia Lovers,

It’s cutting down, digging, storing time once again. Seems as though I was planting a day ago—summer really flies by, doesn’t it? Keep in mind that to help curb the spread of virus as you cut down your plants and dig, be sure to disinfect whatever tools you are using. Between cuttings swish your tools in a 10% solution of Clorox followed by a swish in a Dawn soap solution to keep the Clorox solution from ruining your tools.

We enjoyed an excellent program on bees last month. Thanks Sarah and Jim Thompson for facilitating this month’s program. Please bring your photos for the annual photography contest. Mark your calendars for our DSO holiday luncheon to be held Saturday, Dec. 7, noon at the Holiday Inn, Independence.

Our By-laws need to be updated. They were last reviewed about 20 years ago! Please let me know if you have an interest in this important task. I will email a copy to you. A few issues that need to be reviewed are identification of officer positions (e.g., we have not had a First VP and Second VP for a few years), length of term for officers, dues, structure of committees.

One more time: According to our By-laws, a president may serve at most two consecutive two-year terms. This is my fourth year so we need to elect someone else for 2020-21. There are clearly several very capable DSO members who can easily handle the duties of being president. It is not a difficult job. The hardest of DSO positions is that of Show Chair, which Dave Cap has carried out remarkably. But he should have someone to help him so please consider that position as well. Let me know of your interest in serving DSO in a leadership role. Also, we have four meetings a year for which we typically have a speaker. Are you willing to facilitate one of those meetings? Thank you Karl Southerland for having agreed to do one of them for next year. We need three more. Thanks.

Nov. 15 Program and Photo Contest

Greg Cada, a master gardener from The Ohio State University Extension Service’s Master Gardener Program in Cuyahoga County, will share his knowledge about creating aquatic container gardens at our Friday, Nov. 15th, meeting. Greg is an attorney and registered professional engineer and has presented to the DSO previously.

He will focus on the needs of growing waterlilies, lotus and other aquatic plants. His techniques and instructions are also applicable to maintaining aquatic plants in ponds.

Members who wish to enter this year’s photo contest should choose their favorites and get them printed in time for the meeting. They should be unframed photos no larger than 5 X 7. They may be entered in one of four categories: 1. Dahlia portrait of a single bloom, 2. Multiple blooms of only dahlia, 3. Dahlias and forms, and 4. Artistic design. Member votes determine the winners. Barbara Hosta chairs this annual event.

Holiday Luncheon

Saturday, Dec. 7, 11:30 a.m.
Holiday Inn Independence

Three meal choices: bourbon glazed salmon, chicken marsala, and New York Strip Steak. Send coupon on page 9 with check for $20 made out to the DSO to arrive by November 26.
We could say that Dave Cap is the DSO’s MVP because he has taken on what are probably the most time-consuming tasks available, namely, setting up our three shows—Cuyahoga County Fair, DSO show at the Summit Mall, and Petitti’s Show at the Oakwood location. The work is involved and time-consuming so it is an appropriate time to send a huge “thank you” Dave’s way since we just finished the 2019 show season.

Dave says, “I really enjoy doing the job.” Glenn Ruth and Rudy Bredenbeck, who long-time members will recall, both encouraged Dave to take over their jobs setting up certain of these shows when they were ready to retire. The work involves renting the tables needed, making judging sheets, bringing in all the containers, category poles and classification cards as well as the Oasis, vases and water plus the court of honor supplies including the award cards and then leading the tear-down. Whew, that’s quite a list!

Dave says he got involved in growing dahlias in 1992, when he bought a pack of Kelvin’s Floodlight dahlias at Uncle Bill’s. It is an AA yellow dahlia—his wife, Mary’s, favorite color. For her, in fact, Dave plants one garden that features only yellow dahlias. He said Glenn Ruth helped him a lot as a novice. Many other members were similarly fortunate. He favors both formal and informal decorative styles. Over the years Dave has done well on the show table with Woodland’s Wildthing among others, having found a root that has not declined in quality like many have. It’s a stunner!

When asked what he most enjoys about dahlias, Dave answered “propagating cuttings.” He uses a three-shelf stand with grow lights built in, shown top right, and transports them to our meetings in his van, shown below right. He usually donates about 200 cuttings a year to the society’s May sale. He also donates tubers for the April sale obtained in an unusual way. He gives roots and cuttings away to friends with the proviso that he can come dig and take their roots in the fall. Then he stores and divides them and brings them to the April root sale and, of course, resupplies his friends. Not surprisingly, Dave also helps conduct these sales, which replenish DSO’s coffers.

What does he do to occupy himself in the winter? Not sure members would ever guess this one: he puts together puzzles —1,000 piece being the smallest he will do. These take him about a week to complete. Maybe this hobby is not surprising given that Dave was a machinist for 40 years for Kol-Cap Tool and Die. While retired, he still goes in for certain jobs and can choose those he would like to do.

Born in Cleveland, Dave grew up on West 59th Street. He was in the middle of six boys. He graduated from St. Edward’s High School in 1962 and served in the Army from 1965-67 in Germany. He and his wife, Mary, a nurse, married in 1968 and had a son and two daughters who gave them three grandchildren, one boy and two girls. One of the girls is in Zambia training to serve a two-year stint in the Peace Corps in South Africa.

Gene explained the problems beekeepers face that are hurting honey bees. First is getting quality queens. Queen producers can’t produce them fast enough, and the beekeeper can’t tell if it is a mated queen when it arrives. Secondly, lack of food because housing developments have swallowed up precious bee pasture of wildflowers, roadsides are being sprayed and mowed, and homeowners have eradicated clover and dandelions from their yards. He asked, “Where’s the food???” Lastly, the dreaded varroa mite has plagued the bees for the last 30 years or so. It's...
It is remarkable that the season has come and gone since I last prepared a judging column! Time flies when you are having fun and, I'm afraid, as you get older!

The National Show
It was a great season for those of you who exhibit and judge. The ADS National Show was in Grand Rapids, Michigan, a relatively short drive for most DSO members. The Grand Ballroom of the Frederik Meijer Gardens served as a great spot for both the show and the banquet. It is a beautiful place, and it promises to be spectacular when all the construction is complete. While the construction didn’t interfere with the show, it was certainly clear that the garden would be a greatly enhanced place soon. Jo Jepsen and Rick Peters did a great job pulling all the necessary elements of the show together.

Most of the team working on preparations for the 2021 DSO National show went to Grand Rapids to help us get ready! My thought is that one of the team did exceptionally well in that regard. Congratulations, Todd, on capturing the King of the Show! His Wyn’s Neon Dream was certainly a ‘dream’ bloom.

At the other extreme, I managed to capture the best entry in the new Micro class at the Show. U2 Ania (shown below) was a new cultivar for me, even though I had been trying to grow it for several years! (Long story!). The good news on that cultivar is that I have a pot root of it for Mike and his team to propagate for us next spring. If all goes as well as usual, Mike should have some great (clean!) U2 Ania stock for us at the spring auctions. I encourage you to grow some of the new Micros and their cousins, Mignon Singles. They are easy to grow and to prepare for exhibition. That winning bloom was never staked or tied. It was only disbudded when it was cut for the show. It is safe to say that it took a lot less effort to bring that winner than it was to get Todd’s “Dream” ready to go to the show. I have to admit that I do have an ulterior motive here. Once you start on the exhibiting track, it will be an easy transition to becoming a dahlia judge!! You will find a lot more enjoyment of our favorite flower as you go through that enjoyable learning process.

One of our key objectives for the 2021 show is to make it more affordable than recent National Shows have become. Help us to do that by volunteering to help when Jerry provides opportunities to do that!

Petitti’s Judging Seminar
The judging seminar at this year’s Petitti’s Show included the evaluation of the Micro “seedling,” Cobequid Celestial Star, which has been introduced. Sharon Swaney, Nancy Riopelle and Jim Chuey are shown judging. The bottom line for that evaluation is that they are analyzed on the same criteria as other formations.

Diminutiveness is the primary characteristic to define the class. For the duration of the 5-year experiment, our guidance from Classification Chair Lou Paradise is to be lenient in the determination of size. That basically means that we should include new cultivars in the Micro class if they come close to meeting the 2” maximum diameter. I translate “close” to mean 2 1/4”. The primary reason for that flexibility is to avoid causing a hybridizer to throw out a great cultivar because it is just a little bit larger than the current Micro definition. Lou wants to err on the inclusive side, at least over the next few years. The question of what to do with a smaller-than-normal Waterlily, for example, is a little different question. Lou would say, I believe, to again err on the side of inclusion. Include it as a MWL if it is close to 2” in diameter. HAVE A GREAT WINTER!
