Paul is an ATP-rated pilot, and has single & multi-engine land instrument ratings, a commercial helicopter rating and two jet type ratings.

He is an active volunteer pilot for PALS assisting in the medical flight area as well as flying service-disabled veterans in need of transportation and contributing to PALS Sky Hope disaster relief operations. Paul flew 22 hours over 3 days bringing urgent supplies in and people out of Puerto Rico and Domenica after the islands were ravaged by Hurricane Maria in 2017.

Regarding his service with PALS, Paul has said “PALS is not an organization that likes to say ‘no’. The PALS staff is amazing and works very hard (and often very long hours) to make all the little details in the background happen while the pilot can get on with the flying part of the mission. It really is a fantastic organization.”

Paul is married to Astrid and they have three sons, and they reside in Westport CT. His recreational interests include motor racing and working on vehicles, boating and shooting.
