

Brian Lisoski

Director

Brian Lisoski is a member of the Board of Directors at Patient Airlift Services and has been an active volunteer since the inception of PALS. He is employed at Freepoint Commodities in Stamford, Connecticut.

At PALS, he is involved with pilot recruitment, fundraising and outreach. He is a member of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association. Brian estimates that he has flown 1500 hours since he became a pilot in 2007. He flies missions for PALS at least monthly as either primary pilot or co-pilot. He also contributes large amounts of time and effort into outreach, fundraising and raising the awareness of PALS services to the public and healthcare professionals.

When asked why he volunteers his time at PALS, Brian says “I love to fly and if I can help someone along the way, it just makes my day better.”

Brian lives in Riverside Connecticut and enjoys all types of sports, especially trap and skeet shooting with a variety of clubs.
