2-1-1 Caller Stories

"Rose"

"Rose", a senior in Thousand Oaks, called 2-1-1 seeking food assistance and dental services. She relied on extra income through work to make ends meet, but she was unemployed, so she was struggling financially and was very upset. She had a job offer that kept being postponed by the employer, so she had some hope, but was increasingly stressed. She was staying in a motel with the last of her funds and was clearly in need of affordable housing. 2-1-1 referred her to food pantries, CalFresh food assistance, employment assistance, medical services, and housing resources, as well as the Area Agency on Aging.

When we followed up with Rose, she had applied and been approved for CalFresh. She explained that when she called 2-1-1 she had not eaten in days and shared that "getting connected to CalFresh has been wonderful". The earlier job offer had not worked out, but she had applied to several different jobs with the help of the Job and Career Center and had an upcoming job interview. Rose was thrilled the services she had received through Clinicas, where she got dental care as well as mental health services. Rose also had great news that the Homeless Prevention and Rapid Rehousing Program (HPRP) would be able to help with her rental deposit once she found a place to live.

"Vera"

Vera, a young mother in Oxnard, called 2-1-1 because she had concerns about her four year old daughter's speech development. Vera had been trying to get in touch with someone to help, but had not had any luck. Vera was referred to her local First 5 Neighborhood for Learning, as well as receiving a referral for a hearing screening for her daughter. She had a pending CalFresh application, but it became clear she could also use some additional food assistance while that was being processed, so she was also referred to local food pantries.

During a follow up call, Vera shared that she was able to get assistance through her local First 5 NFL and had appointment for a developmental screening for her daughter. They were even able to send someone from Public Health to her home to work with her daughter on speech development. Vera had also gotten help from a food pantry. She shared that calling 2-1-1 had "been the best experience trying to navigate [her] way around the county for help for [her] daughter."
