THE SINGULAR PATAGONIA

CHILE

With a nod to its century-old history and a glance toward modern luxury, The Singular Patagonia in Puerto Natales is a blend of minimalist chic and classic European style. Built in 1915 as a cold-storage plant to service Chile's sheep farming industry, the old industrial structure was cleverly transformed into a cool, cutting-edge luxe hotel by Chilean architect Pedro Kovacic. Today, The Singular has 54 guest rooms and three suites, all with a or-to-ceiling windows looking out to the fjords and snowcapped peaks of Patagonia. The former laundry is now the dining room and bar, while the reception area is in the old engine room. thesingular.com
