

Is AARP Advocating for Seniors or its Big Financial Partners?

What AARP Does Not Tell Tennessee Seniors:

- AARP supports access-killing drug price-setting schemes like those pushed by Pelosi that could restrict seniors' access to life-saving medicines – but which serve as a financial windfall for AARP's corporate partners.
- Price-setting can limit seniors' access to cutting-edge drugs, and insurers can benefit financially when they are NOT required to cover them.
- AARP's political activities are coming under increased scrutiny in view of AARP's lucrative financial partnerships with large health insurers and corporate middlemen.
- Why? Because AARP was paid nearly $977 million in corporate royalties in 2019, and over $5 billion from the nation's largest insurer, UnitedHealthGroup, since 2010.
- Sadly, policymakers and AARP's own members today must question whether AARP's advocacy is truly in the interest of seniors or those of their financial partners.

AARP Has Already Failed Seniors Across the Country:

- ☒ AARP opposed reforms providing seniors drug discounts directly at local pharmacies; discounts health insurers and middlemen can currently pocket for themselves.
- ☒ AARP has failed to fully address alarming allegations and investigations of its partner, UnitedHealth, with respect to questionable Medicare and Medicaid billing practices.
- ☒ AARP supported Obamacare's $700 billion plus cuts to Medicare despite mass opposition from AARP members.
