

JESSICA STONE

Jessica Stone has been acting professionally since the very young age of 6 weeks and continues to love every moment that she is performing. Whether filming television episodes, commercials, or features, Jessica enjoys working on camera as much as possible. She has spent time on television in such series as ER, Six Feet Under, The United States of Tara, Chicago Hope, Star Trek Enterprise, Hannah Montana, and 7th Heaven, plus has worked in several films featured at the Sundance and Slamdance Film Festivals, Terri, Play Dead, and The Migration of Clouds. Jessica also treasures her time onstage doing live theatre all over the Los Angeles area. Some of her favorite theatre credits include Penny in Hairspray, Helen Keller in The Miracle Worker, Little Sally in Urinetown, Clarisse in Fahrenheit 451, Louise in Sunday In The Park With George, and Scout in To Kill A Mockingbird. Jessica has also worked extensively in the voice over industry, and has voiced characters on television and in films, in addition to numerous anime series and computer games. Creating the voice of Stanley for the Disney Channel animated series was one of her most beloved voice over experiences, and voicing Marcie in the well-known A Charlie Brown Valentine was also an incredible opportunity. Singing is also a passion of Jessica's, which is why so much of her stage work is in musical theatre. Jessica has studied voice for over 16 years with Andrea Vibe, owner of Santa Clarita's VIBE Performing Arts Studio. She received her Associate of Arts degree from College of the Canyons, with an emphasis in the arts and humanities, and was a Valedictorian of her graduating class.
