Do you want to learn how to become a more effective active bystander in situations of injustice?

Do you work with an organisation that is committed to positive cultural change?

On behalf of the Eastern Suburbs Domestic Violence Network, 30 funded places are being offered at the Motivating Action Through Empowerment (MATE) train-the-trainer course in February 2021.

Motivating Action
Through Empowerment

MATE

On behalf of the Eastern Suburbs Domestic Violence Network, 30 funded places are being offered at a three-day train-the-trainer course: Motivating Action Through Empowerment (MATE). This training is being delivered by Griffith University and is valued at approximately $460 per person.

The purpose of this training is to reduce violence against women by teaching individuals the skills and knowledge needed to be an active bystander. The program covers the complexity of challenging problematic behaviour, practical tools and tips, finding personal motivators, and leading others to be proactive bystanders. The program is being delivered in a train-the-trainer format, so participants can then deliver the program internally within their organisation and/or to their members and community.

For more information visit:
matebystander.edu.au/about/

This training is open to community groups and organisations that operate in the Eastern Suburbs (LGAs Woollahra, Waverley, Randwick, Bayside). Each organisation is eligible for up to two funded places. Recipients of the training will commit to providing MATE Bystander training to their organisation by May 2021. A limited amount of funding is available to a small number of organisations to support the roll out. This funding allocation will be undertaken through a separate process.

Please forward your expression of interest to Brenna Harding at projects@thedeli.org.au by 11 December 2020. Decisions on successful grant recipients will be made by a Selection Committee. If needed, we will contact you to provide more information.

This workshop is funded by the Central and Eastern Sydney PHN.
