SUBJECT: Coronavirus Continued Operations

Yesterday March 23rd Governor Holcomb issued a stay at home order effective for tomorrow March 25th for Indiana. This stay at home order provides provisions for companies that are considered as essential and critical based on the products that they manufacture and industries that they support.

Cablecraft has received numerous letters from our customers who support essential and critical infrastructure. Our customers have requested that Cablecraft continue to operate to support their production during this time.

Cablecraft supplies to the Medical (including hospital bends), Defense, Military Aerospace and Transportation Original Equipment Manufacturers (OEM's). It is vital that these manufactures continue to receive materials, from Cablecraft, so they can support the increasing demands this global crisis has caused.

The safety and wellbeing of our employees remains our first priority. The support of our customers, along with the infrastructure, that their products support is also of the utmost importance in the fight against COVID-19.

Our senior leadership has worked alongside our managers to identify ways to keep our people safe and well while continuing to meet our customer demands.

Following the guidance of CDC, local, state, and federal government, we are working in a manner that helps protect our team members, such as practicing social distancing, continuing our cleaning regimen, restricting visitors, and much more.

Any associate, that has a concern coming to work, may remain at home with no repercussions.

Cablecraft will continue to monitor this situation and advise accordingly.

Again, our First priority is ensuring that our associates and their family stay safe!
