Chagrin Valley Farms equestrian center in Bainbridge Township has named Cami Blanchard as its program director.

A Northfield resident, Blanchard will manage and build future educational programs, services and products.

“In addition ... Cami will be responsible for program recruitment, training and scheduling, including future intern and volunteer programs,” said Dawn Gilbert, managing officer at CVF. “As a member of our Show Committee, Cami will also be responsible for our show office during competitions.”

During her 20-year career at Lake Erie College in Painesville, Blanchard was director of Equine Studies recruitment and public relations; adjunct faculty in lecture and riding classes; club adviser; boarder barn manager; and director of horse care. She earned her master’s of business administration and bachelor’s of science in equine studies at Lake Erie College.

Chagrin Valley Farms is Northeast Ohio’s only full service equestrian campus serving the rider and horse through every stage of the horsemanship cycle from the first pony ride to top-level horse show competitor, a news release stated.
