

Andreas Hauss
Founder

Welcome to the

International Society of Life Settlement Professionals

Currently in the Life Settlement industry two major associations coexist; one is LISA (Life Insurance Settlement Association) representing primarily providers and brokers and the other is ILMA (Institutional Life Markets Association), represented by major international investment banks.

From my experience as President at Life Settlement Advisors, I am convinced that the tremendous growth potential of this asset class can only be attained with maximum investors' confidence and increased transparency. For this reason, I decided to establish the International Society of Life Settlement Professionals, (islsp), a team of industry visionaries and renowned professionals.

Since the inception of islsp and its subsequent launch law offices, providers, underwriters, investors and related professionals applauded this initiative, all agreeing that in the current market scenario only a clear vision and dedication to be investor oriented will attract the necessary capital to the asset class to assure success.

islsp in particular seeks out and welcomes investors and those who represent them to take an active part in shaping the industry that serves them. islsp encourages investors to participate on every level of islsp from determining needed investor training courses to establishing new standards of excellence and transparency.

Thank you for your interest in islsp. Our team will be glad to answer your questions and we hope to welcome you soon as one of our valuable members.

Sincerely