

January 2021 update for Radius Capital Management

PERFORMANCE AT A GLANCE

Portfolio/Index	January Return	YTD Return To 1/31/2021
Radius 100 (100% stock mutual funds)	0.7%	0.7%
Radius Index 100 (100% stock ETFs)	0.5%	0.5%
U.S. Stock Benchmark (Vanguard S&P 500 Index Fund)	-1.0%	-1.0%
Balanced Risk Max (target risk/volatility same as S&P 500)	-1.9%	-1.9%
Radius Bond (100% bond mutual funds)	-0.5%	-0.5%
Radius Index Bond (100% bond ETFs)	-0.7%	-0.7%
Bond Benchmark (Vanguard Total Bond Index Fund)	-0.8%	-0.8%

Despite a strong start to the month, most stock indices gave up their gains in the last week of January. Both the S&P 500 and the MSCI World Index (an index of Developed Country's stock markets) ended the month down 1.0%. Investors looked to be adding riskier stocks back to their portfolios as they moved into Small Cap and Emerging Market stocks. The Vanguard Small Cap Index Fund and the MSCI Emerging Market Index were up 2.2% and 3.1% respectively. On the fiscal side, the new administration proposed a $1.9 trillion "American Rescue Plan", on top of the bi-partisan $900 billion stimulus that was agreed in late December. This flow of money to private households, and then back into the economy could lead to a significant acceleration in growth. For bond markets however, increased expectations of government spending are putting pressure on long-dated US Treasuries. The Vanguard Long Term Government Bond Index fell 3.6% in January.

With positive news surrounding vaccination roll outs and the large amount of stimulus on the horizon, we are somewhat optimistic but remain watchful of the path to a full economic recovery. We continue to recommend that investors remain prudent and expect further volatility in the near term though. The best way to protect from long-term investment declines is to diversify one's investments across multiple, uncorrelated asset classes and investment strategies. Attempting to "time the market" is seldom a successful strategy and we would not recommend you do so.

MARKET CHARACTERISTICS

Stock market volatility [§]	High (monthly avg. = 25, month end = 33)
Business Cycle Phase	Early Recovery
Dominant Investment Style (active vs. passive)	Active

[§] In general, the higher the market volatility (as measured by the CBOE Volatility Index or VIX), the more the market is driven by investor emotions (greed and fear). Lower market volatility indicates a market environment based on fundamentals (economic growth, corporate earnings, etc.). The long-term average for the VIX is 20, 30 is considered high, 40 very high, and 50+ extreme.

Footnotes:

- Investment return numbers for the Radius 100 and Radius 60 reflect the (unaudited) performance of actual portfolios that have been invested since 1/2001. For the period prior to its inception date, the returns for the Radius 20 are calculated using the actual returns from the Radius 100 and 60.
- Returns for the Index portfolio prior to 8/2014, the Balanced Risk Basic and the Balanced Risk Plus prior to 4/2015, and the Balanced Risk Max portfolio prior to 11/2019 are back-tested and not actual returns of accounts managed by Radius. Back-tested (simulated) performance results have certain inherent limitations. Unlike an actual performance record, simulated results do not represent actual trading. Also, since the trades have not actually been executed, the results may have under- or over-compensated for the impact, if any, of certain market factors, such as lack of liquidity. Simulated investment strategies in general are also subject to the fact that they are designed with the benefit of hindsight. No representation is being made that any account will or is likely to achieve profits or losses similar to those shown.
- The Balanced Risk Plus and Max portfolios invest part of their assets in leveraged ETFs. These funds seek daily investment results – before fees and expenses – that are triple the return of stock (S&P 500, NASDAQ, Russell 2000), bond (20+ Year Treasury Bond), commodity (gold, oil), and real estate market indices. Using these leveraged ETFs results in greater volatility and a greater risk of loss.
