

The Buccaneer in St. Croix Announces Special Savings Package for 24th Annual Coral Reef Swim on November 10

Christiansted, St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands (August 8, 2019) – The oldest family-run resort in the Caribbean, The Buccaneer, is gearing up for the 24th annual St. Croix Coral Reef Swim on Sunday, November 10, 2019. Held annually each November, the swim race attracts both fitness swimmers competing for fun and world-class, open-water athletes from all over the globe. The Buccaneer’s owner, Elizabeth Armstrong, established the Coral Reef Swim in 1995 with fellow swimmer Kim Sanford as a fundraiser for the East End Marine Park, with the goal of preserving and restoring coral reefs.

The race has three distances for competitors to choose from: one mile, two miles and five miles, offering experiences for all levels of swimmers. All participants will swim through the Caribbean blue water and colorful coral reefs before ending at The Buccaneer’s palm-lined beach.

As a reminder, U.S. residents do not need a passport to visit and participate in the swim race in this beautiful destination, which is part of the U.S. Virgin Islands. Entrants can register for the Coral Reef Swim here.

Participants can enjoy discounted rates at The Buccaneer by booking the resort’s Coral Reef Swim Race Package. (Hurry - the weekend sells out fast!) The package includes luxurious accommodations; breakfast; beach gear and accessories; an introduction-to-SCUBA lesson; WiFi; and a Tuesday welcome cocktail party. Ocean View Rooms start at just $255 per night, while Deluxe Oceanfront Rooms start at $335 per night. A three-night minimum stay is required, and taxes are not included in these rates. Proof of race registration is required at the time of booking.

Last year, the five-mile race was won by renowned open water champion Ricardo Valdiva from Miami (1:53:56). The two-mile swim race winner was Marina Falcone from Tampa (54:03), and Justin Chiles from Washington, D.C. placed in first for the one-mile swim (24:31).
