

RESUME

Todd Vanadilok AICP [he/him/his] is an independent contractor and Principal Planner of Egret & Ox Planning, LLC, which is a minority-owned and DBE/MBE-certified small business focusing on community planning. Since 2001, Todd has built his career (and now his independent small business) on the foundation of extensive urban planning experience, primarily in the Chicago region.

Todd's experience spans the entire spectrum of community types, ranging from counties, municipalities, and corridors to downtowns, neighborhoods, and single blocks. A majority of his experience springs from work with municipal clients, where he has prepared comprehensive plans, updated zoning codes, completed economic development studies, and conducted development review. At a regional scale, Todd has served as lead planner for county-wide land resource management plans, regional housing policy studies, and interjurisdictional corridor plans. At the micro scale, he has prepared neighborhood plans and devised strategic plans for community-based organizations in urban areas.

Todd's leadership roles with various executive boards and working committees have built up his capacity to collaborate with a broad network of governmental agencies, community organizations, organizational partners, and other professional consultants across a large metropolitan region. He is also an advocate for creating appropriate planning and design graphics to clearly communicate ideas and ensure sound decision making by communities and organizations.

Todd works to advance social justice in the field of urban planning and the communities he serves, including his own.
