Union members & allies rally for good, union jobs in Somerville #WeRise protests effort by CEOs and billionaires to use the Supreme Court to further rig the system against working people
By Rand Wilson, Patch Poster | Feb 26, 2018 3:16 pm ET | Updated Feb 26, 2018 8:02 pm ET

As the Supreme Court heard oral arguments today in the case of Janus vs. AFSCME, about 75 union members and their supporters gathered at Somerville City Hall to say that regardless of any Supreme Court decision they will remain united because Somerville’s workers need good, union jobs more than ever. "The greedy billionaires and CEOs behind this case don’t want us to be united," said Ed Halloran, President of the Somerville Municipal Employees Association. "They want to weaken our power, divide and conquer, so they can continue rigging the system against working people as they’ve been doing for decades. But we plan to stick together in our union no matter what. These are the same people who demonize union members simply because we have the right to negotiate safe working conditions and fair wages. This is an attack on the quality public services we provide."

Today’s actions in Somerville were just one of hundreds of similar #WeRise actions held by working people across Massachusetts and the entire country. "This court case isn’t just an attempt to divide union workers," said Melinda Green of Our Revolution Somerville. "It weakens our entire community and hinders much-needed progressive change." "I want working people in Somerville to know that I am against this attempt today to use the highest court in the land to further rig the rules of the economy," said State Rep. Mike Connolly. "Instead of trying to make it more difficult for working people to use their power in numbers, we should be making it easier to join a union. I will do everything I can do to help Somerville workers join together in unions."

Other elected officials attending included: State Rep. Christine Barber, Alderman Ben Ewen-Campen (Ward 2), Andre Green (school committee, Ward 4), Alderman Will MBah (at-large), Alderman Mark Neidergang (Ward 5), Alderman Mary Jo Rossetti (at-large), Alderman Bill White (at-large), candidate for Governor Bob Massey, and candidates for Lieutenant Governor Jimmy Tingle and Quentin Palfrey.

Other participating union officials included IAFF Local 76 Secretary-Treasurer Bob Hodnett, Somerville Teachers Association President Jackie Lawrence, Mass Teachers Association VP Erik Champy, AFSCME Council 93 Executive Vice President Kevin Hanley, UFCW Local 1445 Reps Gene Giacobbe and Tony Flanagan.
"The attack by the Supreme Court on working people is also an attack on everything we are fighting for in Somerville," said Rand Wilson, an organizer with SEIU Local 888. "We're going to stick together, keep up the fight to help more workers unite in unions and work to improve wages and working conditions here in Somerville. We call on our elected leaders at every level to take action. For example, here in Somerville it's long overdue that our laws for fair contracting, living wages, and against wage theft be updated and enforced."

Participants at the event vowed to stick together no matter the result of the Supreme Court case and fight for even more good, union jobs that can provide financial security for families, strengthen communities and boost the economy.

The event was sponsored by SEIU local 888, Somerville Municipal Employees Association, Fire Fighters Local 76, Firemen & Oilers/SEIU Local 3, Our Revolution Somerville, Good Jobs Somerville, and Somerville Stands Together.

Great job, everyone!
NEW BEDFORD — Sheila Kearns won’t win a spelling bee any time soon, but she grabbed the hearts of those union supports rallying outside of City Hall on Monday. The Union President of AFSCME local 1067 spoke atop the steps on William Street in front of a crowd of a couple hundred people organizing together on the first day the United States Supreme Court heard oral arguments in Janus v. AFSCME.

“How do you spell entitlement?” she asked the crowd. “J-A-N-U-S.” A few voices in the large crowd surrounding the podium, replied, “That’s right.”

The case involves a public employee from Illinois, Mark Janus, who is suing AFSCME because he said he is forced to pay union fees despite not belonging to the union. He believes the requirement infringes on his First Amendment right. The case will decide whether public-sector workers who do not belong to unions must still pay union fees.

Similar rallies were held nationwide and in 11 locations throughout the state including Boston, Fall River, Worcester and Springfield.

(Janus v. AFSCME) is something that’s definitely going to destroy unions,” Vice President of AFT Local 6350 at UMass Dartmouth Nicholas Gula said.

The Acushnet native said non-profit unions won’t be able to survive if fees aren’t paid. He said his union has 143 members and estimated it wouldn’t survive if it fell below 50 members. “There would be no way that we could hold it up,” Gula said.

Representatives from across the state trekked to New Bedford for the rally. Union members from Fall River spoke. Sen. Paul Feeney, representing Bristol and Norfolk counties also addressed the crowd. City Councilors Naomi Carney, Hugh Dunn, Maria Giesta and Scott Lima attended the rally. Mayor Jon Mitchell and Rep. Antonio Cabral also addressed the importance of the rally.

“This is the beginning of a new day, a day which we have to work harder,” Mitchell said. “We should see this as an opportunity to renew the labor movement in the United States.” “We’re going to fight back,” Cabral said. “The enemies of the working people, listen carefully, ‘We are going to fight you every step of the way.”

Politicians passed around a large letter, which they signed. It began in the crowd and by the end of the event signatures in black Sharpie filled every available space.

The GIC Board of Commissioners met this morning and voted to adopt plan rates for Fiscal Year 2019, which begins on July 1, 2018. Overall, the news is positive for active employees receiving coverage through the GIC. The average increase across all plans is just 0.4% - well below the market average. However, individual plan cost increases/decreases range from a reduction of 3.9 percent to an increase of 6.9%. Therefore, how individual workers are impacted will depend on what plan they choose during the upcoming open enrollment period. This chart provides information on individual plan premium costs with comparisons to current premiums and the premiums that will be effective July 1, 2018.

We strongly encourage our members to use the upcoming open enrollment period of April 4 to May 2 to thoroughly research their options so they can make an informed decision. We especially encourage attending one of the many healthcare fairs that will be offered around the state, where members can get detailed answers directly from plan providers.

Today’s vote comes just three weeks after the GIC voted to reverse its decision to eliminate a number of insurance providers that are currently covering more than half of the people receiving health insurance through the GIC. The intense public and political pressure leveled against the GIC by AFSCME and other public-sector unions was the driving force behind the GIC’s vote to reverse their decision and maintain all current providers. No doubt, these efforts also provided the GIC with the motivation needed to do their best to minimize plan cost increases for the upcoming fiscal year. In other words, the strength of our union and the activism of our members has made a big impact.

AFSCME Council 93 thanks all of our members who took the time to voice their concerns directly to the GIC and we look forward to continuing to work with our members to make substantive changes at the commission.

Weingarten Rights. Know them, Use them! (SAVE THIS INFORMATION)

If you are unsure if they apply, ask for them anyway. Better to be safe than sorry.

Know your rights! Please read below!

Employee Rights in "Weingarten" Meetings – Know Them, Use Them!

Beware that management is not obligated to inform employees of their Weingarten rights — employees must ask for them.  Unlike Miranda rights — where police are required to tell a suspect of his/her right to an attorney, etc. — employees must ask for their Weingarten rights.

Weingarten — State the following:
“If the discussion in this meeting could in any way lead to my being disciplined or terminated or impact on my personal working conditions, I request that my steward, local officer or union representative be present.
Without union representation, I choose not to answer any further questions at this time.
This is my right under a Supreme Court decision called Weingarten”.

Weingarten rights apply during investigatory interviews when a supervisor questions an employee to obtain information that could be used as grounds for discipline for either you or a colleague. When an employee believes such a meeting may lead to discipline, he/she has the right to request union representation. These basic Weingarten rights stem from a Supreme Court's decision.

• The employee must request representation before or during the meeting.
• After an employee makes the request, the supervisor has these choices:
  • grant the request and wait for the union representative's arrival;
  • deny the request and end the meeting immediately; or
  • give the employee the choice of either ending the meeting or continuing without representation.
  (Never, ever, ever, continue without representation! EVER!)

If the supervisor denies the request and continues to ask questions, the employee has a right to refuse to answer! In addition, the supervisor is committing an unfair labor practice.

As always, call your Chief Steward if you have questions or if you are unsure!

Please note: Do NOT think that you are bothering your steward if you have a question or a problem with your supervisor and/or management. That is what we are here for. Table officer contact information is on the front cover.
Please come to a meeting to find out how you can become a union member.
