Inauguration: City Celebrates 'OneDenver,' Dismisses Say No Yet

Inauguration day events will kick off Friday at 5 p.m. downtown as Denver celebrates the new administration and the city's vision of becoming a more inclusive, sustainable and vibrant city.

City leaders, including Mayor Michael Hancock, will address the crowd at Civic Center Park, where the speeches will conclude at 6:30 p.m.

The free event will feature live music, food and a sky show, with the lighting of the Denver skyline.

Later, the mayor and first lady, Traci, will visit with�n})(e t

The event is part of the ongoing efforts to make Denver more inclusive and sustainable, and to promote economic development and growth.

Denver is the second-largest city in Colorado, with a population of about 700,000 people. It is located in the Rocky Mountains and has a mix of urban and rural areas.

The city is known for its vibrant arts scene, outdoor recreation opportunities, and a strong economy.

Denver has a long history of innovation and growth, and has been a leader in sustainable development and transportation solutions.

The city has been working to improve its streets and transportation systems, and has a variety of bike-sharing and car-sharing options available.

The city has also been working to improve its parks and recreation areas, and has a variety of outdoor activities available for residents and visitors.

The city is home to a wide range of businesses, including technology, healthcare, education, and finance.

The city has a strong arts and culture scene, with a variety of theaters, museums, and music venues available.

Denver is a great place to live, work, and play, and is a wonderful place to visit.