How to achieve impact at scale with technology in your school

Session Synopsis

We all know how hard it is to make the most of technology in our schools. One such area is in that of Learning Management Systems or 'VLEs'. In this session, framed around his recent publication 'A Guide To Creating A Digital Strategy' – Mark Anderson & Al Kingsley, and research from attendees and the wider education community on Learning Management Systems, he will share not just the results but the hallmarks of great technology use in schools. You will explore 'What A Good One Looks Like' and the broad factors needed to be considered in order to make the most of technology in your establishment.
