

LIVING TODAY LIKE THERE IS NO TOMORROW

Christians should not fear the thought that there may be no tomorrow related to our life on this Earth. Our salvation is secure. Scripture is clear that we should be confident in the hope of our salvation through Jesus Christ.

Consider for a few moments if today were your last on this Earth before entering into Heaven to enjoy all eternity with our Lord: How would you live today differently? Who would you make a point to visit with today? What plans would you ensure are in place to protect your family and provide for those areas in your life that you value?

As you consider if today were your last, what estate plans specifically need to be completed? As stewards of all that God allows us to enjoy, may we manage appropriately and have impactful plans for what we value. Our written estate plans through a Last Will and Testament include who we are placing in charge of the estate, who will care for our minor children (if applicable), and who we want to benefit in what way.

As Christians, the Foundation wants to encourage you to seriously think about today as if it were your last for the sake of urgency and to spur each of us to take care of our estate plans for the sake of being good stewards of God's blessings in our lives. For most of us, these plans will represent the largest stewardship decisions of our lives because for most of us the largest transfer of our assets will take place when we enter Heaven one day.

For help with your estate plans, please call the Louisiana Baptist Foundation at 877-523-4636 or email at Contact@LBInfo.org. As you consider today as if it were your last, enjoy the day that God has given!
