

Stolen Youth

No child should be bought or sold for sex.

THE Ginny FUND

Survivors of sex trafficking face many challenges along the path to recovery. The cost of an education, a car repair, or a medical bill can stand in the way of a survivor living a full and healthy life. The pandemic impacted many survivors who lost viable employment and struggled to pay for basic needs such as rent, food, or childcare.

The Ginny Fund was there for them.

The Ginny Fund ensures that survivors don't have to choose between having a roof over their heads or pursuing their dreams. Watch below to hear directly from Advocates (who support survivors on their road to recovery) on how The Ginny Fund has supported their clients throughout the year.

Project: SugarFree

Along with our partners at Seattle creative advertising agency DNA, StolenYouth continues to fight back against the normalization and glamorization of "sugar dating" through our Project: SugarFree platform. Most recently, we were featured in a KOMO News story detailing the dangers of "sugar dating." The story described how this platform is bringing awareness to our community and sending warning messages to potential victims and exploiters, giving them an opportunity to stop engaging before it's too late.

Check out the KOMO News segment here.

If you are interested in learning more about "sugar dating" and how to prevent it, visit our website.

Become a StolenYouth Amplifier

Do you want to take action against child sex trafficking and exploitation? Are you active on social media? If you answered "yes", we have a great opportunity for you!

StolenYouth is looking for social media volunteers to amplify our message and our mission. We want to increase our visibility and advocacy to end child sex trafficking in Washington state.

For more information and to apply, click here.

HELP RAISE AWARENESS AND END CHILD SEX TRAFFICKING

