Remembering Vicky

Our entire team was heartbroken in the sudden loss of our team member Vicky (West Lafayette employee). Vicky was a wonderful part of our Homestead family, and she will be missed. Our continued prayers go out to her husband and family. 'And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain...' – Revelation 21:4

WELCOME TO NOVEMBER

by WADE J. ZETTERBERG

I'm not going to lie; I've been a little preoccupied the last week or so to even think about writing the upcoming month's newsletter. "Preoccupied". Quite the understatement. Nevertheless, I wanted to make sure I didn't miss a month. Especially November. The best month of them all...or at least it's in the top twelve. The following piece is something I wrote well over a decade ago, and at the time I didn't have any personal inspiration for it. I just wrote it. But upon completion, it hit hard. My own words moved me. And I hope that reads as more artistic than arrogant, because it caught me by wonderful surprise. And right now, I could use a "wonderful surprise". Anyway, I wanted to get this story out there again.

Be THANKFUL for what your life contains. It could all go up in smoke at any moment...

Colossians 4:2 "Devote yourselves to prayer, being watchful and thankful"

DINING ALONE

The caressing breeze made her smile as she removed the key from the ignition. A slow drive to the bistro, with the windows down, had always been a pleasant escape for her when times were rough. And allowing the warmth of Mother Nature's whispers to enter her very soul seemed to be just what she needed right now.

Sitting in the seat, she stared at the surroundings as if they had just been placed there, but she knew them well. Cobblestone streets beneath her, and rows of willow trees lining the way home in her mirrors. Picturesque and almost too beautiful.

She could see him sitting in the passenger seat beaming with pride from knowing he had made her dreams come true by living in such a lovely, and well-cared for community for so long.

Collecting her things. She exited the vehicle and made her way along the stony fence row towards the downtown area. Store fronts that still give glimpses into the past. Hanging baskets with brightly colored flowers in nearly every window. Nostalgic advertisements from years gone by. Timeless and classic.

Murphy's repair shop had been in business for over sixty years and was now being ran by Murphy's grandson. Her memory fades to a day where he had walked in and pulled out several large bills to purchase a new lawnmower. He was so proud. And as she stood outside the store that day, she recalls how he would occasionally look back at her through the large store front window, with his sandy blonde hair and debonair smile.

She laughed aloud as she remembered the number of times he had to take that mower back to get worked on after that initial day. And as she looked over her shoulder, she could see him laughing along with her.

Continuing on, she passed the jewelry shop. It had been purchased by a national chain a few years back, but she would forever remember it as Keepsakes, a family-owned business that sold many beautiful styles of jewelry, as well as picture frames, perfumes, silk ties, and variety of other finer things.

It was there that he proposed. Right there in the middle of the store. In front of everyone. He had asked her to come along to look at a ring he was buying for his mother, but she suspected otherwise. Still, she went along with it and soon enough he was on one knee, in front of her, asking her to be his bride. She could still hear the applause from the other patrons and clerks as she enthusiastically accepted and passionately embraced her new fiancé.

Joyful tears ran down her face as she looked back at that night.

The romantic drive home. The slow stroll up the front walk. The knowing look on her parent's face as she went inside. After the wedding, aside from the time they spent apart during the war, they lived together in the same house, and in the same community for more than sixty-two years.

Sixty-two years.

The realization of that length of time shook her from her warm memories of the past to a day where she jumped at every round of shots fired as she clung to a neatly folded flag.

Walking a few more steps, she took a seat at an empty table at the sidewalk bistro.

"Will anyone be joining you?," asked the smiling waitress.

Stone faced, yet nearly grief stricken at the question, she outwardly maintained her composure.

"No. Not today," she somberly said.

"I'll be dining alone".

-WADE J. ZETTERBERG

CUSTOMER REVIEWS

So lovely to have in Remington, it's a 10/10 every time I go! -Robin D. (Remington)

Love it. Had chicken salad. Very yummy love the new location everyone is very friendly. -Shana S. (West Lafayette)

SUPPLY & DEMAND CHALLENGE

Unfortunately, we are experiencing the challenge of product availability as well as a significant increase in cost of supplies including groceries, packaging, and freight. We have had to make some slight adjustments on our prices. Thank you for your understanding, supporting small, and supporting local. We are certainly living in uncertain and challenging times.
