Last Saturday, we went out to sea to look for whales. Every September, these huge creatures swim along this part of the Californian coast. We saw three large groups of whales. At lunchtime, we sailed back to the coast and stopped in a bay and had our picnic lunch on the beach.

For lunch, we had shellfish. After lunch we hunted for crabs in the rock-pools. They move very fast! We caught about twenty-five. When we were climbing back onto the boat, my watch fell off. It sank and ended up on the seabed. I wanted to dive to get it, but the Captain said, 'Don't swim here! There's a shark swimming in the bay.' So I never got my watch back.
