

November 20 meeting begins in Newcastle with the Pledge

The Lincoln County Republican Committee held its monthly meeting on Dec. 11 at the Minnehata fire station in Nobleboro. The meeting was well attended and the group participated in an enthusiastic Q&A with guest speaker, Julie Rabinowitz.

Meeting Summary

Jay Allen, Candidate U. S. Congress, District 1 spoke of his fundraising goals and needs and announced his upcoming watch party in Topsham. He also spoke of the need for healthcare cost transparency and the potential implications of the Equality Act as applied to the Trans community and that the Climate Change narrative was about nothing but massive tax increases.

Julie Rabinowitz

July Rabinowitz, of the Maine People Before Politics, spoke of multiple economic topics including the many Democrat schemes to erase the changes made during the LePage Administration and create programs that hurt working people. She told the group of the obligations Gov. Mills has to the “green groups” that supported her and the Climate Transportation Initiative.

Beth Printy spoke of the Maine Women for Trump and their various initiatives to bring conservative ideas to Maine.

The committee’s official headquarters will soon be opening at 241 Route 1, Damariscotta. An open house will be announced within the next week or two. Some more volunteers are needed to staff the office. This is an easy and flexible way for Republicans who would like to join the effort to participate.
