Ask A Recruiter

"Is it acceptable to ask a recruiter if the job is going to be filled internally??"

- Jerry T., San Diego, CA

It is perfectly acceptable to ask, however you might not get a straight answer, depending on the type of recruiter you are working with. A corporate recruiter (company employee) may not know and is not required to tell you. A third party retained recruiter may not know and will get paid either way, so whether or not they tell is completely up to the recruiter. A third party contingency recruiter, however, will be sure to get you the real answer so you don't move further on a job opportunity that is unlikely.
