

Exclusive Offer for Registrants

Synopsis:

The current COVID-19 pandemic has led to much uncertainty: financial, both business and personal; business uncertainty associated with the various work restrictions, assistance programs, and in the case of TCLBA members and the Hanford community at large, how DOE and the Prime Contractors are going to help or hinder.

Humans resist change based on many factors. Through research conducted both by myself independently and as a supervisor for Organizational Psychology Doctoral students, I can share that fear of change largely comes down to two factors.

Objective:

Registrants will learn what to do to manage themselves and their teams through uncertainty and change of the current C-19 crisis, and also take away tips for a healthy mindset for dealing with change.

Offer from GoRocco.Pro:

All participants can take part in a free session with Rocco Luongo to assess their situation in a private, confidential, password-protected video call.
